Accuses Pelley And Army Men Of Plotting to Overthrow U.S.

New Yorker Makes
Charge Before
Dies Committee

CLAIMS PROOF

Quotes Silver Shirts' Leader
as Saying Aliens
Would be Shot

Washington—(AP)—Representative Dickstein (D-N. Y.) charged before the Dies committee today that William Dudley Pelley, head of the Legion of Silver Shirts, had been tied up with a number of army officers in a fascistic effort to overthrow the government of the United States.

The New Yorker, vice chairman of a former house investigation of un-American activities, appeared voluntarily before the present investigating group to declare:

"I charge that he was tied up with a number of army officers, and I have evidence to prove it."

Declaring Pelley, Asheville, N. C., publisher, was a "Jew-baiter" and a self-styled American "fascist" who had spread more hate than anyone else in this country, Dickstein asserted Pelley's aim was to replace the present United States government with one patterned after the Hitler regime in Germany.

NAMES MOSLEY
"I charge Pelley with being a motivating force behind the fascistic forces on the part of army men," the committee heard. "He is a well-known, well-backed by army men against the government," he said in a formal statement to the committee.

Major General George Van Horn Moseley, U. S. A., retired, was described by the Dies committee last year as being active in connection with various so-called patriotic organizations. He testified about his activities before the committee.

Dickstein had Representative Cramer (D-Calif.) identify documents which he said had been taken from Pelley's files at Asheville several years ago. And he had with him at the hearing, to testify against Pelley, blonde Miss Dorothy Waring of New York, who said she had been a special agent for the former investigating committee and was now a journalist.

She testified that Pelley told her he planned to lead a march on Washington and become the "white king" of the country.

Miss Waring said she had met the silver shirt leader while she was working as a secretary in the New York headquarters of "The Order of the 18," an organization now disbanded. One evening in April, 1934, she recalled, he came to her apartment and told her of his plans and wearing black boots.

Sought Support
"Thinking I had a great deal of money," she continued, "he took me and a half hour trying to interest me in supporting the silver shirts. He explained that eventually the organization would march on Washington—that he would be the king of the country."

Meanwhile, by vote of the house, George Power, Pittsburgh, Communist leader, was ordered cited for contempt of the house for refusing to answer questions of the Dies committee.

Powers, secretary of District 5 of the Communist party in Pennsylvania, was the second Pittsburgh.

Oil Flows Out of Water Faucets in City in California

Orland, Calif.—(AP)—After trying a long time, they struck oil in a well, but it poured out of every water faucet and nobody was very happy about it.

Somewhat, a supply of crude oil into the city's main wells and wasn't long before the city was badly gummed up. The city's 500 residents thought the April 500 day incident was in bad taste. Orland's fire department spent a night pumping out the mains' hopes of cleaning them sufficient to permit water from an uninfected emergency well to be turned on.

Ch. Engineer Fred Pratt said he believed subterranean water levels had floated an oil pool up into the city wells.

Several oil drilling projects have been started in this area with little success, but no one ever thought of tapping the city water system.

House Committee Backs Changes in Wagner Labor Act

2 Amendments Protect A.F.L. Unions. Let Em- ployer Ask Elections

Washington—(AP)—The house labor committee approved today two amendments to the Wagner act intended to protect A. F. of L. craft unions and to give employers the right to ask the labor board for collective bargaining elections.

Chairman Norton (D-N. J.) said the committee probably would complete consideration of all proposed changes in the law tomorrow and would ask the house to consider no other revisions than those it will suggest.

Previously the committee had decided to recommend that the present three-man labor board be increased to five members.

Mrs. Norton said that the committee adopted, 9 to 6, an amendment by Representative Wood (D-Mo.) to revise one section of the act so that when a majority of employees of a craft in a plant "shall so decide, the board shall designate such craft" as a proper collective bargaining unit.

Help Employers
By an 11 to 4 vote, she reported, the committee decided to write into the law permission for employers, "caught in the middle" between two

Will of Horlick Filed With Judge at Racine

Racine—(AP)—County Judge J. Allan Simpson announced today that a sealed envelope purporting to contain the will of William Horlick, Jr., was filed with him today for safekeeping.

The envelope was filed by Attorney George Smalley of Racine and Attorney Ralph Hoyt of Milwaukee.

Judge Simpson said the will would be read Thursday at a private meeting of relatives and business associates of Mr. Horlick, who died yesterday of heart disease.

Funeral services will be conducted in St. Luke's Episcopal church at 2 p. m. tomorrow, the pastor, Rev. Alexander Simpson, will be assisted by the Rt. Rev. Benjamin F. P. Ivins, bishop of Milwaukee, and the Rt. Rev. Harwood Sturtevant, bishop of Fond du Lac.

Masonic rites will be conducted at Mount cemetery, the place of burial.

Senate Rejects Curb
On State Department

Washington—(AP)—The senate rejected, 45 to 36, today a proposal to prevent the state department from reducing existing excise taxes or making a pledge against enactment of any new duties of this nature in negotiating future trade agreements with other nations.

The amendment was put forward by Senator McCarran (D-Nev.) as an amendment to legislation to continue the trade program for three years. He said he desired to retain in congress exclusive powers in matters of revenue and taxation.

The administration preserved its lines in obtaining rejection of the amendment, the first to be considered since it was successful last week in beating off a proposal to subject future agreements to senate ratification.

Economic War To be Pushed, Commons Told

Chamberlain Reveals Series of Trade Pacts With Neutral Nations

BOLSTER BLOCKADE

New Air Clashes Over
North Sea; Nazi Plane
Near English Coast

London—(AP)—British and German warplanes roamed the North sea engaged in a series of brief, sharp fights in the last 24 hours which reached a climax this afternoon in a German raid on British convoys which the admiralty announced had been driven off.

Although at least 10 bombs were dropped, the admiralty said, the Nazi raiders were repulsed without damage.

London—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain disclosed to the house of commons today a series of trade agreements with neutral nations surrounding Germany and warned that the allies were "determined to prosecute the economic war to the utmost of their power."

The prime minister outlined steps to choke off German supplies and said that he looked forward to an "intensification" of the blockade against Germany and of British trade exchanges with neutral countries.

Chamberlain cautioned neutral nations that aid to the reich might render them "liable to the previous fate that has overtaken hideous victims of German policy."

Chamberlain announced that, in addition to the trade agreements, the British stranglehold on German trade was being tightened by:

1. Control of the sea, with the navy already having taken "certain" practical steps to interfere with passage of German cargo ships from Scandinavia, and halting Russian ships in Far-Eastern waters.

2. A warning to neutrals that their imports from the empire

Former Bank Cashier Is Witness at Fraud Conspiracy Trial

Superior—(AP)—Guy Irvine Stearns, former cashier of the Farmers' State bank of Canton, testified today as a fraud conspiracy case entered its seventh day.

Stearns is one of three defendants remaining in the case. Others are Fred Martz, Monroe cheese buyers, and Jacob Martz, Rice Lake cheese maker, father and son.

Elmer J. Young, cashier of the closed State Bank of Rice Lake, withdrew his not guilty plea Monday and entered a plea of guilty.

Counsel for Fred and Jacob Martz motioned the court for a directed verdict of not guilty today, and Judge Patrick T. Stone took the motion under advisement. He refused a motion to dismiss charges against Stearns.

A jury of six women and six men is hearing the case.

Civil War Veteran Succumbs at Madison

Madison—(AP)—John H. Betty, 93, past senior vice commander of the Wisconsin department, Grand Army of the Republic, died at his home here today.

Betty formerly lived at Walker, Iowa. He once was separated from his family through a train accident in which he was believed killed. Suffering from amnesia he wandered around the country for two years. When he regained his memory he returned to Iowa to find his family had moved away.

Mrs. Betty, meanwhile, had married twice at Lone Rock, Wis., and both husbands died. Relatives located Betty in 1921 and he married his wife again at Cresco, Iowa, when he was 74. The couple settled at Lone Rock where Mrs. Betty died in 1928. Their children preceded the parents in death.

Republicans Support Move To Question Two Envoys on Papers Published in Reich

Washington—(AP)—A proposal that the senate foreign relations committee try to ascertain whether Ambassadors William C. Bullitt and Joseph P. Kennedy have made unauthorized statements drew Republican support today, but Democratic leaders opposed it.

The inquiry was proposed yesterday by Senator Reynolds (D-N. C.), who said that German publication of documents purporting to quote the two envoys made an investigation necessary.

A similar demand came from Representative Fish (R-N. Y.). He said a special committee should determine whether the facts warranted "impeachment of any American ambassador or minister or even of the president."

Reynolds proposed today that the state department explain why undersecretary of State Sumner Welles was sent to Europe recently and to supply what information it has on the "white book" recently issued by Germany.

Reynolds offered a resolution which also would request Welles to

Platform Must Win Labor's O. K. or Lewis Says He Will Call Convention of His Own

BY WALTER MASON
Monongah, W. Va.—(AP)—Under threat of a third-party move, John L. Lewis demands that the Democratic party select a presidential candidate and adopt a platform satisfactory "to labor and the common people."

Otherwise, the militant chief of the Congress of Industrial Organizations proposes to call a convention of his own "to formulate a program that each and every American can support."

His mandate, laid down in a bristling address before a throng of soft coal miners yesterday, avoided use of the phrase "third party," Lewis commenting afterwards "we'll reserve that for later."

The bushy-browed head of the United Mine Workers said he told the organization's Columbus convention that if the Democratic party wanted to work with labor "and common people," there was yet time to work out an acceptable program and agree upon a presidential candidate.

"Up to this point, however, I have no reason to believe that the Democratic party is even alive to its own hazards and I have no reason to believe that its leaders even have a desire to cooperate with labor and the common people of this country. . . .

"If the Democratic party does not nominate a candidate for president or adopt a platform satisfactory to labor and the common people, I shall, after the conventions, propose and urge upon these various organizations the assembling of a great delegate convention. . . .

"And we'll see," shouted the man who once was one of President Roosevelt's strongest supporters, "whether mere machine politics in this country are going to be more powerful than the voice of the people of this land."

"I am serving notice upon the political parties in this country and I don't expect anything from the Republicans, that America cannot be permitted to drift, drift, while politicians merely hope, hope."

HEADS NEGOTIATIONS New York—(AP)—John L. Lewis, C. I. O. chief, arrived today to take charge of union negotiations in New York city's threatened transit strike on major subway and elevated lines serving the city's 7,000,000 inhabitants.

A strike cell would affect 27,000 employees.

"I settled this once, and Delaney overruled it," Lewis told newspapermen, referring to John H. Delaney, chairman of the board of transportation.

"I am going to try to settle it again today, if I can find someone responsible in the city to deal with."

With that comment, the C. I. O. chairman immediately went into conference at Hotel St. Regis with Michael J. Quill, international president of the Transport Workers union, and other union officials.

It was expected Lewis would meet later in the day with Mayor LaGuardia, who has anticipated possible chaotic conditions by mobilizing personnel and equipment of 10 municipal departments for a 24-hour emergency period.

Red Envoy Confers With Hull; Moral Embargo to Remain

Washington—(AP)—An hour's conference between Soviet Ambassador Constantin A. Oumansky and Secretary Hull failed today to shake Hull's determination to keep the moral embargo against shipments of airplanes and plane-making materials to Soviet Russia.

Oumansky requested the interview with Hull, the first he has had in several months.

At a press conference later the secretary of state told reporters that the moral embargo was still in effect against any country in the world which incurs its penalties.

Asked specifically whether the cessation of hostilities between Russia and Finland meant an end of the moral embargo, Hull said there was nothing new on that subject.

An official interpreted this to mean that the end of the Russo-Finnish war had not brought an end to the moral embargo.

President Submits New Reorganization Program to Congress

Washington—(AP)—President Roosevelt submitted to congress today his third plan for reorganization of government executive agencies, providing for more than half-a-dozen changes which he estimated would result in annual savings of about $150,000 in administrative expense.

One shift will consolidate in a fiscal assistant secretary, all treasury financing and fiscal activities.

Into the new service, the president said in a message to congress, will go the office of the treasurer of the United States, the office of commissioner of accounts and deposits, and the public debt service.

Charge Monopoly in Handbook Business

Detroit—(AP)—James C. Drysdale, chief of police of suburban Grosse Pointe park, testified today at the examination of Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea, Sheriff Thomas C. Wilcox and 33 others on a charge of gambling conspiracy that the handbook business was a monopoly controlled by the village president.

Alfred J. Garska, a defendant and president of the village until March 16 when he was defeated for reelection, was a majority partner in one handbook, Drysdale testified, and had a working agreement with the other two in the village.

Garska, Drysdale testified, kept all competition out.

Voting in Today's Election Is Heavy, Noon Survey Shows

Although dark clouds hovered overhead threatening rain this morning, voters went to the polls in sufficient numbers today to indicate that voting in today's election will be heavy, a survey of polling places at noon revealed.

In many of the wards the count at noon was double that of the primary election when 6,100 persons visited the polls. If the weather holds until closing time, officials said they expected the total to be well over 8,000.

The highest vote recorded at noon was in the Twelfth ward where 180 persons had voted compared to 100 in the primary. A total of 153 voted in the First ward, 167 in the Sixth ward, 98 in the Eighth ward, and 99 in the Seventeenth ward.

The polls will close promptly at 7 o'clock tonight. The vote in the regular election two years ago was 2,445.

Minimum Wage Order Upheld in Federal Court

Labor Must Not 'Bear All
The Load,' Tribunal
Says in Alabama Case

New Orleans—(AP)—The fifth circuit court of appeals affirmed today an order of the wage-hour division of the department of labor fixing a minimum wage of 32 cents an hour for textile workers from Oct. 24, 1939.

The order was contested by the Opp Cotton Mills, Inc., of Opp, Ala., and the Southern Manufacturers association, which declared it discriminatory. It was issued upon recommendations of Industry Committee No. 1 for the textile trade, last September.

Pointing out the minimum wage "provides weekly earnings of approximately $13," the court said that "whatever discrimination may be pointed out in the conflicting evidence, labor should not be called upon to equalize the discrimination by bearing all the load."

The Opp case was the first court test of industry committee procedure under the fair labor standards act of 1938.

It was also the first time a United States circuit court of appeals had been asked to pass on constitutionality of the act.

The court found the act constitutional, at least so far as it is involved in the fixing of the textile industry minimum wages, saying: "Only those provisions affecting this proceeding are passed upon."

Three Sentenced for Carrying Hidden Guns

Detroit—(AP)—Three of four men whose arrest last July in the Dr. Martin B. Robinson "robbery" case set off the greatest shakeup in Detroit police department history today were sentenced to serve prison terms of two and a half to five years.

They are Louis Jacobs, Irving Feldman and Sidney Cooper. The fourth man, Joseph Holtzman, was placed on probation.

All were convicted March 15 of carrying concealed weapons. Some weeks earlier they were acquitted on an armed robbery charge. The testimony in that trial was that no robbery had been committed. That the "holdup" was a fake designed to collect a gambling debt and at the same time permit collection of holdup insurance.

Conflicting stories about handling of the recovered "holdup" money led to numerous changes in police personnel.

Of Good Will to Banks

Madison—(AP)—Good will is as important an asset to banks as good bonds. E. L. Pearce, vice president of a Marquette, Mich. bank, told 225 persons today at the annual banking conference sponsored by the Wisconsin Banking association, the state banking commission and the University of Wisconsin commerce school.

"Everything in banking depends upon pleasant and sympathetic relations with the public," Pearce said.

Allan M. Pope, president of the First Boston Corporation of Boston, Mass., also scheduled to speak at the conference, declared in an interview that private enterprise would never regain its independence if it was brought about regimentation of all industry in the United States.

Voter, 100 Years Old, Makes Trip to Polls

U. S. Eyes Roosevelt- Garner, Vandenberg-Dewey Fights

3 MAIN FACTORS

Unfavorable Weather
Keeps Many Voters
Away From Polls

Milwaukee—(AP)—Aware of the spotlight which Wisconsin enjoys as a political barometer in presidential election years, Badger voters register their choices for party nominees today in the process of selecting delegates to the Democratic and Republican conventions.

Features of the Wisconsin election which the nation is watching may be summed up in these choices confronting the voter:

1. In the Democratic column, President Roosevelt or Vice President Garner as his presidential preference.

2. Also in the Democratic column, a choice of three states of delegate candidates, two supporting the president for a third term, the other pledged to Garner.

3. In the Republican party, delegates pledged to Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan or those backing Thomas E. Dewey, New York district attorney—the first test of strength between these presidential aspirants.

Light Voting
Early voting was light in numerous communities of the state, partly due to the weather, which was gloomy and chilly.

At Green Bay, where there was no mayoralty contest in the municipal election which fell on the same day as the primary, a relatively small number of voters had gone to the polls at 10 o'clock.

At the same hour, Racine also reported a light vote. A normal vote in Racine totals about 23,000, but observers estimated that today's aggregate would approximate 15,000.

Overnight rain and the threat of more out the early vote in Madison and LaCrosse. Half an inch of hail fell in the latter city this morning. In both cities, the heaviest voting is in the afternoon, when workers return from their jobs.

Contrasting the trend was Wausau, where the mayoralty race and a hotly contested referendum on a $584,000 school building program sent the voters to the polls in large numbers. The early vote was slightly above normal.

4 Delegates-at-Large
There will be no direct presidential preference vote in the Republican column because no personal nomination papers were filed. In each party, four delegates-at-large and 20 district delegates are to be chosen, with the possibility that split delegations might be elected.

Although third-term sentiment is a direct issue in the Democratic preference vote, the question is complicated in the selection of delegates by the presence of the two separate slates of Roosevelt supporters.

One, labeled the "officially-endorsed Roosevelt-Farley" ticket, is backed by Democratic National Committee chairman C. E. Broughton, who says this slate has "the backing of Washington." Use of Postmaster General Farley's name, Broughton declares, is just a complimentary gesture.

Second Slate
The other slate, offered by a liberal group known as the "Democratic Party Organization of Wisconsin," avows that it will support Mr. Roosevelt or whomever he might favor for the presidential nomination.

Garner forces hope that a split in the vote for Roosevelt delegates might give them the delegation. An uncertain factor in the voting is the Progressive party of the La Follette brothers, which has no candidate. Its members legally may

Find Actor Died of Heart Inquest Is Launched

Hollywood—(AP)—An autopsy surgeon declared today that Walter Miller, veteran motion picture player, succumbed to heart disease but an inquiry into "eastern hoodlums" trying to "muscle in" on movie extras moved forward.

Miller, 47, one-time leading man for Mary Pickford in flicker days out in recent years a bit player and "heavy" died Saturday following a camera fight scene. Studio officials said he was performing in closeups after a vicious battle Thursday in which neither he nor his opponent "pulled their punches."

The inquiry which his death inspired was ordered by Chief Criminal Deputy William J. Bright, expressing the opinion it "should have the closest scrutiny."

"The sheriff's office," Bright disclosed, "has had many complaints that members of the Screen Actors' Guild were being 'showed around' by eastern hoodlums who are trying to muscle in on the extras and bit players in the movies. We do not know whether Miller was having any trouble with these intruders but we will make a thorough investigation."

Economy Issue, Labor Act Still Great Problems

Plenty of Fireworks Expected Before End of Current Session

Washington — (P) — Two big storm clouds—economy and Wagner act revision—hung over congress today as the third month of the election-year session ended.

They forecast plenty of thunder and lightning before the lawmakers go home, probably about June 1, to help nominate presidential candidates and look after their own campaigns.

While these remaining issues were coming to the front, however, administration forces were preparing to clinch a major victory—extension of the reciprocal trade program for three years. The house already has approved the bill, and Roosevelt backers confidently expect the senate to do so by Thursday.

Relief Question

Relief funds for the next fiscal year will provide the principal argument over government expenditures. Economy advocates who have been defeated in recent tests in both house and senate want to hold the 1940-41 WPA appropriation to $1,000,000,000—a figure which President Roosevelt probably will recommend.

There is strong sentiment, however, for increasing the amount, the subject will get its first airing tomorrow when Colonel F. C. Harrington, WPA commissioner, explains to the house subcommittee the administration's views on relief needs.

Representative Taber (R-N.Y.), a subcommittee member, said there was nothing so far to indicate any reason for adding to the budgeted figures.

He joined Chairman Woodrum (D-Vt.) in predicting that the house would insist on retaining the requirement in previous relief bills that the WPA apportion its funds in advance over a 12-month period. This is designed to prevent the agency from spending all its money in a few months and then asking for more.

Believe Farley Will Not Enter Coming Primary Battles

Washington — (P) — Astute politicians in the capitol figure that James A. Farley will not enter any of the presidential primaries that are coming up.

The postmaster general has not fully amplified his intentions. His name, however, has been tied in with that of President Roosevelt in several states. Alaska instructed its delegates for Mr. Roosevelt first, and for Farley second. Maine did the same. The names of the president and his postmaster general have been linked on one of the Democratic slates running in Wisconsin.

On his present trip, Farley is visiting states which, principally pick their delegates in convention. This, coupled with Farley maneuvers in other quarters, helps along the conclusion drawn by many that even though his aim may be for the presidential bull's-eye, he will not be too disappointed if he happens to hit the vice presidential circle.

And, since two New Yorkers could not be on the same ticket under a broad interpretation of the constitution, it also bolsters the speculation that Mr. Roosevelt is not expected by his postmaster general to run again.

More Men to Colors; Switzerland Near Full Mobilization

Berne, Switzerland — (P) — The Swiss general staff today called up tens of thousands of soldiers for April 15 and 22, putting the conscription close to general mobilization.

The order said the various units recalled for duty had been summoned to replace others demobilized recently. It was noted, however, that few units had been released and a total of 41 units of varying size had been recalled.

The high command said it was determined to keep the Swiss military strength as nearly as possible on a par with the number of troops which any one belligerent had stationed near the frontier.

It has been reported in Switzerland that the Germans now have between 12 and 18 divisions in the Baden and Wurttemberg areas north of the Swiss border. Swiss officials said, however, that their presence "gives no immediate cause for alarm."

Taft Wants Name Off Ballot in New Jersey

Washington — (P) — Senator Taft of Ohio said today he was writing the secretary of state of New Jersey requesting that his name be taken off the New Jersey Republican presidential primary ballot.

His name, the senator said, had been filed by a supporter "without my knowledge or consent."

Taft has not entered any primaries except the one in his own state and has taken the posture that he would not do so unless he could find the time to conduct a real campaign.

would be cut down unless they limit their sales to Germany.

The allies are determined to "continue and intensify the blockade in every possible way," Chamberlain said.

The prime minister declared that the neutral nations concerned in the trade agreements "must realize that we cannot agree to make available to them products drawn from empire sources unless in return they are prepared to give us guarantees of the limitation of their future trade with Germany."

Before beginning his statement on the conduct of the war, Chamberlain in answer to a question said that German-Russian cooperation appeared to be "most marked" in the economic sphere.

Then in his statement Chamberlain said that Germany was intimidating neutral nations with threats to make them conform to what he called the German "double standard of neutrality."

As for the prospective tightening of the blockade against Germany, Chamberlain said that "his majesty's ships have already taken certain practical steps to interfere with the unimpeded passage of German cargo ships from Scandinavia." Still other measures are under consideration, he said.

Would Stop Materials

Shipment of Swedish iron ore by way of Norway and Norwegian coastal water to Germany has been troubling the British.

"If we are to bring this war to a close with the least possible destruction and dislocation... we must deprive Germany of materials most essential for prosecution of her aggressive policy," the prime minister said.

Chamberlain disclosed that all of Britain's new war trade agreements "contain stipulations regulating the exports of neutral countries' own domestic produce to Germany."

Triumphantly he announced agreements with Norway, Sweden, Iceland, Belgium, the Netherlands and Denmark to balk German deals in these rich dairy and steel lands north and northeast of the reich.

Then the prime minister expressed hope that the house would welcome the government's initiative in calling home its envoys to the oil and wheat producing countries south and southeast of Germany for a conference on a means of cracking the allied economic whip in the Balkans.

"True Peace" Aim

Once again Chamberlain hammered home his ruling idea that France and Britain would fight until they had won "a true peace safeguarding their own security and that of the other free nations of Europe."

Before the cheering had died down the liberal and labor opposition spokesmen jumped to their feet to support Chamberlain. One declared that "the whole country is behind the prime minister in making the blockade as tight as possible."

A series of sharp air clashes over the North sea and a German plane's approach to the southeastern English coast today gave a spurt to the war in the air.

Apparently the most important fight occurred near Germany's Sylt island naval base, where the British air ministry said its planes had bombed patrol boats yesterday.

One British raider failed to return from the fray, the ministry acknowledged.

Germany discounted the raid, however, and said all 23 bombs dropped had missed.

Planes in Fight

Returning from a search for German naval vessels, a British plane encountered a German Junkers last night over the North sea and forced it to flee with a damaged fuselage, the British said.

An early-morning engagement between three British planes and two German bombers, part of the time flying only 20 feet above the North sea, was described by a British announcement which said one British plane landed near the coast after its pilot sustained a slight leg wound.

British planes chased off a plane which appeared to be German as it approached the southeastern English coast.

The British reported that the German freighter Mimi Horn, 4,007 tons, had been scuttled by her crew when intercepted in northern waters on a run from the Netherlands West Indies.

Allied the neutral shipping losses for the week ended Sunday were placed by the admiralty at 13,901 tons.

Club Votes to Organize PTA in Wisconsin Avenue Area

Committees were appointed and reports were heard at the first official meeting of the Franklin Parent Teachers association and will meet on the last Monday of each month the next meeting to be April 29. The club voted a membership fee of 40 cents.

Sergeant Carl Radtke, head of the police department's traffic division, talked and showed the bicycle safety picture, "Handle Bar Hazards," at the meeting. He explained the city's bicycle ordinance.

A survey made by the club's fact-finding committee headed by Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Crane, revealed that of 500 families living north of Wisconsin avenue, 422 had children of school age. The families preferred to send their children to schools north of Wisconsin avenue.

Officers of the club are Irving Kersten, president; Mrs. Stanley Hamilton, vice president; Miss Dorothy Schoengarth, secretary; and Edward Joyce, treasurer.

Committees named at last night's meeting follow: Constitution, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Lurie, chairmen, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Madison—Possibility of revision of the fluid milk price regulations in the Fox River Valley was suggested Monday with the disclosure that the department of agriculture and markets will consider granting authority to dealers to sell on a cash and carry basis.

Verlyn F. Sears, head of the milk price control division who recently reported price-cutting complaints in that part of the state, Monday announced that he will hold a hearing in the Outagamie county courthouse at Appleton at 1 o'clock on April 11 to hear arguments on a proposal for special cash and carry prices as suggested in a petition signed by patrons of an Appleton dairy and filed with the department.

Arguments will be on authorizing such sales methods in Appleton and surrounding communities, and particularly in the Neenah and Menasha market which is regulated jointly with Appleton, it was said.

Meanwhile it was learned reliably that state agricultural officials and those farm organization leaders who are sponsoring the drive for voluntary contributions to the Wisconsin Dairy Industries Association's $100,000 dairy advertising fund are concerned about difficulties encountered in the Fox river valley area.

Results of the solicitors assigned to the principal valley counties, Winnebago, Outagamie and Brown, it was said, have been indifferent thus far, although it is one of the principal dairy manufacturing regions of the state.

The assessments are handled through dairy plants, but are paid by the farmer on the basis of his butterfat production, and amount to about 10 cents per cow.

Blind Lawyer in Illinois Politics

Honor Student Becomes Candidate for State Representative

Danville, Ill. — (P) — Willard Ice, a young lawyer who won all kinds of scholastic honors despite the handicap of blindness, seeks Republican nomination as a candidate for state representative in next week's primary election.

Graduated from the University of Illinois law college last June, Ice says he hopes to learn legislative work as a member of the state legislature, but that his ultimate ambition is to become a judge.

Blinded in an accident 20 years ago, Ice attended the Jacksonville State School for the Blind, where he was graduated with highest honors in 1933. Four years later, Illinois college at Jacksonville graduated him as valedictorian.

In law school at the university he won scholarships each year and finished at the head of a class of 76. He took his examination for the bar in March, 1939, and was admitted April 13, 1939, more than two months before commencement.

Allies Policy of Economic Strangulation Leaves It Up To Hitler to Take Offensive

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
New York — (P) — Every move which the Anglo-French allies are making in their intensified campaign against Germany is directed primarily toward economic strangulation rather than military offensives.

The allied parliaments which just before the Easter recess gave their cabinets sound trouncings for alleged lack of initiative in conduct of the war are finding at their resumed sittings today that plenty of initiative has developed, but that there has been no fundamental change in policy.

England and France continue to depend mainly on their blockade, which they are now in process of repairing and supplementing vigorously, to choke Germany into submission.

This allied policy of economic strangulation doesn't mean that battles won't be fought. It does mean, however, that barring some exceptional development the initiative for any major offensive in the near future is likely to come from Hitler, if at all.

And when I say Hitler, I mean precisely that. He alone throws the switch that sets the Reich military machine in motion. Never have we had a clearer exemplification of the military maxim that it's not a soldier's business to think, but only to obey.

Anything Can Happen
This is a crazy war in which anything can happen, but circumstance entitles us to presume that Hitler will be governed in his military program by the amount of pressure put on him by the blockade. He claims up to this juncture has been able to beat the allies at their own economic game, and his present activities indicate that he isn't through playing it yet.

One wonders, however, whether the fuhrer's ideas have been changed any by the sudden coining of his friends Stalin and Mussolini. Soviet Premier Molotov announced Saturday that Russia is going to remain neutral. And a high quarter in Rome said that the triple entente which Hitler hoped to effect—Germany, Russia and Italy—wasn't a possibility at this time.

In any event, an economic struggle obviously means protracting the war.

Time is running against Germany for the blockade already has been damaging. Hitler must either repair that damage quickly or strike with his fighting arms. Probably he feels that he can afford to gamble a bit longer on the chance of improving his position in the Balkans and through Russia.

It seems to me, however, that the moment the probability develops in his mind that he is going to be beaten in the economic struggle, he is bound to lash out with his military weapons to try to save himself. Then may come the "blood battle" which has been threatening.

The allies at the moment are concentrating on three weaknesses in their economic blockade:

1. The continued shipment of iron ore from Sweden to Germany thereby providing the reich with a military necessity without which the Nazi armaments industry would be crippled.
2. The Balkans, upon which Hitler has been banking greatly for supplies, especially Rumanian oil. A battle royal is proceeding here—oil versus German barter trade.
3. The resale to Germany by neighboring neutrals of goods and raw materials purchased in America. There is much agitation in England and France for rigid rationing of Germany's neutral neighbors, but it is a highly delicate subject and no formal move has yet been made although ships carrying contraband have, of course, been detained.

It is in many respects the oldest story of the world. The British claimed that the American trade with Scandinavia and Holland increased 300 per cent, thus representing re-export to Germany. The United States protested that our trade was suffering from unjustifiable interference, though Washington didn't make much impression until—but let's turn to the good old Encyclopedia Britannica to help us over a rough spot:

"America was however on firm ground when she called attention to the magnitude of Britain's own exports to these same countries, figures produced proving conclusively that Britain herself was doing exactly what she was trying to prevent America from doing. The cry of 'Business as usual' had largely governed her policy, no matter who the business was with, and but for this, Germany must have succumbed long before she did."

That's pretty strong mustard, but what's good enough for the Brits ought to be good enough for you and me. I can only add that when the United States entered the war we passed measures for stopping all German trade and made it impossible for adjacent neutrals to re-export to the central powers.

One wonders whether that's a reason the allies would like us in the war now.

Many Candidates, No Campaigning At Clintonville

Clintonville — Although there is opposition for all major city offices, there is an apparent lack of campaigning preceding the spring election Tuesday. The names of 35 candidates appear on the ballot.

Polls will be open from 9 o'clock in the morning until 8 o'clock in the evening. They are located at the I.O.O.F. hall on E. Twelfth street for the First ward; the Christianson tailor shop on S. Main street for the Second and Third wards; and the city hall for the Fourth and Fifth wards.

A. A. Washburn, mayor of Clintonville for the last four years, is being opposed by F. A. Spearbraker, and City Clerk S. J. Tilleson, seeking reelection after six years in office, is opposed by Frank Sinkel. Although seldom opposed for the post of city treasurer in the last 25 years, Dr. Robert Fugstad has this year Lester Sawyer running against him.

Four candidates are seeking the office of assessor. Matt Zehren, incumbent, is opposed by Henry C. Sengstock, Hans A. Brooks and Henry Hedtke. E. E. Larson, justice of peace, has no opposition. C. Frank Hamilton, incumbent, has Merrill Boulaac running against him for the office of constable.

All wards have several candidates in the field for the aldermanic posts. In the First ward William Habeck, incumbent, is opposed by Charles Barker, George Spiegel and Alfred Gehrke. Fred Gansen, seeking reelection in the Second ward, has as his opponents Otto Hundertmark, a former alderman, and Arthur Kaphingst.

A three-cornered race in the third ward finds John B. Johnson, Joseph Bobb and William Timm seeking the post being vacated by Fred Tanner.

George Berndt, seeking reelection as Fourth ward alderman, has Nick Schmidt running against him. Three candidates desire the Fifth ward aldermanic post being vacated by Albert Winter. Joseph Stein, William L. Gould and Emil Frei are in the race.

Those seeking offices as supervisor are E. J. Perkins in the First ward; Arthur Steenbock, incumbent, and Walter Meggers, in the Second ward; Ferdinand Goerling, incumbent, and Edward J. R. Meyer in the Third ward; Charles Binder in the Fourth ward; and Henry Weller in the Fifth ward. Perkins, Binder and Weller are candidates for reelection.

Special Presidential Study Shows Iowa Leans Republican And Gophers Tend Democratic

By Institute of Public Opinion, Princeton, N. J.—Some idea of the closeness of party strength in the middle west at the present time can be obtained from the fact that Iowa is leaning to the Republican side in a special Presidential study just completed by the American Institute of Public Opinion, while its neighbor, Minnesota, is leaning Democratic.

Both states, of course, were "normally Republican" until Franklin D. Roosevelt came along in 1932. Both gave President Roosevelt comfortable majorities in 1936. And today—with Presidential candidates yet to be nominated—both are showing signs of moving back towards the G.O.P.

Iowa, which is the home state of Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace and which gave Mr. Roosevelt 56 per cent of its major party vote in the 1936 Presidential election, shows a 10-point Democratic defection at this time. In Minnesota, where President Roosevelt crushed his Republican opponent by a vote of 2 to 1 four years ago, the defection has been approximately 16 points.

Cross-sections of the voters in the two states were asked: "Which party would you like to see win the Presidential election this year?" The actual votes in each state were as follows:

IOWA (56% for FDR in 1936)
Favor Republican	54%
Favor Democratic	46%
MINNESOTA (67% for FDR in 1936)
Favor Democratic	51%
Favor Republican	49%

Political 'Preview'
The institute's current fact-finding surveys in the 48 states are in the nature of a preview of party strength in the coming Presidential campaign. By continuing its surveys up to and through the Presidential nominating conventions this summer, the Institute will be able to discover what differences—if any—are caused by the selection of flesh-and-blood candidates and by the campaign proper.

As in other states, the Institute's surveys show that although President Roosevelt is widely popular as a second-term President a majority of voters in Iowa and Minnesota are not at this time willing to vote for a third term.

Should Mr. Roosevelt openly declare himself a candidate, of course, changes in sentiment might occur.

Political Box Score

In a pre-convention preview of the 1940 Presidential race the Gallup Poll is asking voters in each state: "Which party would you like to see win the Presidential election?" Following are the results for seven states reported thus far:

LEANING DEMOCRATIC	Electoral Votes
New York	47
Pennsylvania	36
California	22
Minnesota	11
116
LEANING REPUBLICAN	Electoral Votes
New Jersey	18
Massachusetts	17
Iowa	11
44

These would have to be measured when and if such a contingency arises. At the present time, however, the Institute's double index of the President's strength gives the following picture in Iowa and Minnesota:

IOWA
Approving FDR as Second Term President	58%
Would Vote for 3rd Term	40%
MINNESOTA
Approving FDR as Second Term President	65%
Would Vote for 3rd Term	42%

Both Iowa and Minnesota gave signs of a Republican swing in the 1936 mid-term elections, when both states elected Republican governors. Recently political commentators devoted considerable attention to a Congressional by-election in Iowa's Sixth District, where the Republicans were elected by a majority eight points greater than the Republican candidate had received in the same district four years ago. The Republican gain in this district compares closely with the gain indicated for the G.O.P. in the state as a whole in the present Institute survey.

Ambassador May Go to Germany, Lawrence States

Value of Moral Protest by Withdrawal Some Time Ago Exhausted

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—Although the German propaganda officials have made a rather clumsy effort to intervene in the American political campaign of 1940 by the so-called Polish disclosures, the incident fortunately has not had such unpleasant repercussions here as to mar the very friendly relationship which Under-Secretary Welles develops with the German government on his recent visit to Berlin. An American ambassador may be sent to Berlin in the not far distant future.

Lawrence may be sent to Berlin in the not far distant future.

In order for the Nazi propaganda plan to be successful, the Republic must be able to issue documents in the Polish language. Here and there is a Republican isolationist willing to play the Nazi game, but for the most part the Republicans have been effectively prevented from using the Polish papers by the very fact that the Nazis have sponsored them.

Some day the propaganda office in Berlin will understand that the last way to try to divide Americans politically is to issue documents in a foreign country with an avowed purpose of discrediting the existing administration in Washington. If there is anything calculated to promote unity at home it is the effort of a foreign government to promote internal disunity.

So far as the Polish papers are concerned, most officials here and most public men, whether Republican or Democrat, are not at all disturbed. For even if the Polish documents did report accurately informal conversations of American diplomats, the prevailing query here is in the vernacular "so what?"

Expressing Opinions
Does anybody in Berlin think that even before the war broke out any American diplomat had the right to commit the Congress of the United States to any course involving war? If they do then they know little about the American constitution. Likewise if any American diplomat expressed his own opinion about what America might do if the British and French democracies were defeated, he was merely indulging in a bit of conversational adventure which happens to be the custom from coast to coast in the United States. Many a Gallup poll has been taken on the same subject and nobody knows the exact answer except that Germany would win.

Likewise if any American diplomat expressed his own opinion about what America might do if the British and French democracies were defeated, he was merely indulging in a bit of conversational adventure which happens to be the custom from coast to coast in the United States. Many a Gallup poll has been taken on the same subject and nobody knows the exact answer except that Germany would win.

Since the present war broke out, the United States by an overwhelming vote in both houses of Congress deliberately repealed the embargo on arms and the factories of this country now are supplying the latest type of airplanes as fast as they can be manufactured. The same or incidents may possibly convey to Berlin what the American diplomats may have sensed as they sat at dinner or luncheon several months ago with Polish officials and speculated on what might happen if war broke out in Europe.

Made Denials
Officially of course, denials have to be made. There is an old rule in diplomacy that if an indiscreet bit of conversation is published, it is then considered by mutual consent of both parties never to have been uttered. In this instance both the Polish ambassador and the department of state and the ambassadors concerned have never made, which means that for the record, at least, it does not matter how many watermarks are found in the papers in the archives at Warsaw or whose name is signed to them—the interviews simply didn't occur.

In Washington the whole episode is regarded as trivial and as an inept effort by the propagandists in Berlin to cause ill-feeling. But the disclosures already made or those yet to come will not quash any here for the American government is really determined to maintain full and friendly relations with

All Indications Point to at Least One or Two Years of War

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER
Washington—Both in our government and among numerous foreigners with whom I have talked, the expectation is for at least one or two years more of war.

Best informed Allied sources do not think that their blockade can win the war. It can help, but there is doubt whether it can be decisive. There is little hope that Germany can be starved out of the war. The Allies could get into the Black Sea and cut off Baku oil. But that is a long and roundabout and dubious undertaking, involving use of the Mediterranean and a possible explosion in the Balkans. The whole project is studded with paralyzing "ifs."

Opinion is shifting to the view that time is with Hitler and that he can sit on the defensive indefinitely, accumulate further oil reserves against some distant day of need, and maintain the status quo which is to his advantage while the Allies situation disintegrates. In other words, the situation may have turned so that the war of attrition wears more heavily upon the Allied side than upon the German.

Yet at the moment, the Allies seem unable to face the appalling proposition of attacking in the west. Inactivity apparently is breeding restlessness in both England and France. Some English labor groups are beginning to adopt peace resolutions and to denounce the "imperialist war" in good communist style. France is having her internal political troubles. The economy of both countries is completely dislocated. Idle armies add to the emotional strain and the morale difficulties.

On the other hand, it is no easy matter for a government to screw up its nerve to incur the appalling slaughter that would be required in a western front offensive. Hence the speculation as to the possibility of a backdoor attack on Germany's oil, and the tentative consideration of trying to cut off Sweden's iron ore shipments to Germany. An operation which would not only be difficult from a military point of view but which might involve some unpleasant tramping upon neutral rights.

Allied Stand is For Destruction of Hitler

Not one sign in the sky points to an early peace. The Allies have taken their stand for the destruction of the Hitler regime which they consider a menace to their security. Their attitude is that to stop short of that would be to leave Hitler entrenched in his present conquests and give him a breathing spell in which to prepare for further expansion. In more blunt words, the Allies consider that Hitler's objective is to crush them, particularly to smash the British empire, and that his position has become so strong that he must be decisively defeated to remove the danger. This leaves the Allies little room in which to compromise and there is no indication that they are ready to compromise.

At any rate, the only intelligent basis upon which this government can look at the future is on the assumption of a long war and one in which the Allied side will be dependent upon the United States for vital supplies, particularly airplanes.

Repetition of the pattern of the previous World war appears to have been. It is unlikely that there will be any change in this country's keep out of war policy during the presidential campaign. The Republicans have a simple course already laid out. They only have to keep saying that the administration is trying to involve us and that its policies to keep us out of war cannot be depended upon.

The Democratic position is more difficult, for it must justify the administration's moves to help the Allies while at the same time trying to reassure the country that it does not contemplate our going to war, that its policies will not involve us.

There is no large pro-German sentiment to be taken into account by the political parties this time, but there is an even stronger anti-war sentiment than existed in 1916, and both parties will play hard to satisfy it.

Berlin in an official sense if at all possible. Just now it is desired to send an ambassador and a full staff to Berlin so that both governments can iron out misunderstandings quickly and prepare themselves for the time when some sort of peace negotiation must be begun. After all, the Washington government has an ambassador at Moscow and that course has been defended in Congress so there is no good reason for withholding an ambassador from going to Berlin. All the value of a moral protest has been exhausted by the withdrawal of the ambassadors some time ago and hence much help to the diplomatic relations of the two countries can come if each government has someone to report fully on the state of affairs in their respective countries.

Finds Unions May Picket Places Not Involved in Strike

Milwaukee — (3) — Circuit Judge Gustave G. Gehr, dismissing an injunction petition brought by the New Hostess Ice Cream company, Monday upheld the right of a union to "peacefully picket" places where its members are not employed.

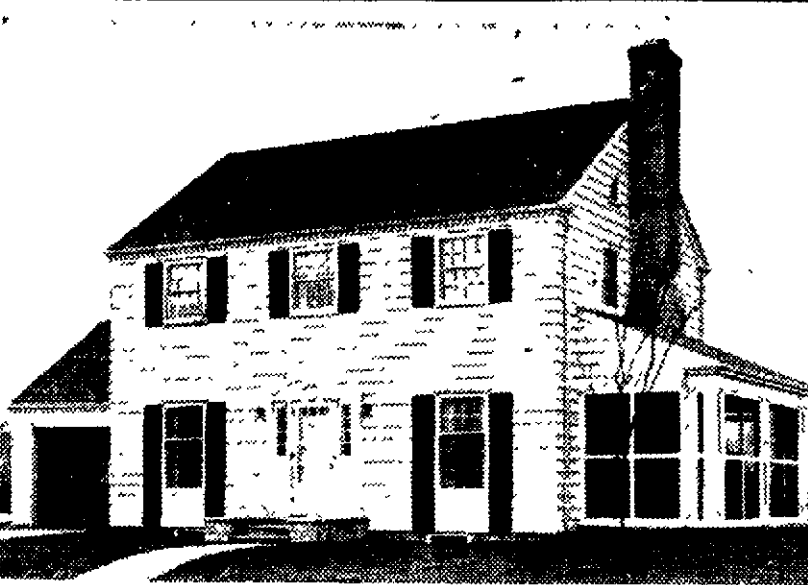

The Catlin "stranger picketing" law, passed by the 1939 state legislature, makes it illegal to picket an establishment when no labor dispute exists "between the employer and his employees."

The ice cream company had asked the court to prevent the Milwaukee Building and Construction Trades Council (A. F. of L.) from picketing its new plant here and the stores of its customers.

Judge Gehr described the picketing by the union as "fair persuasion" and said:

"If the display carrying about of canvass signs by individuals in the manner described are to be deemed picketing under Section 103.535 (of the Catlin law), then they constitute peaceful picketing and patrolling."

He contended that "except to a minor degree" the union's methods of advertising the dispute "did not constitute picketing according to the approved usage of the language."

50,000 Oldsters in State, 858 In County Get Old Age Pensions

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—The number of persons receiving old age assistance grants in Wisconsin has increased more than 2,000 per cent since October of 1935 when state participation in the social security program was started, the state department of public assistance has reported.

A new case load high was established in February, it was noted, with a total of 50,131 persons on the old age pension rolls for a total of $1,107,722 in old age assistance grants.

Since the state and federal governments assumed responsibility for furnishing 80 per cent of the old age pension cost, and one third of the cost of aid to dependent children plus special federal assistance, old age pension beneficiaries have increased in number from less than 5,000 to more than 50,000, while the children's pension load has doubled it was explained.

The average old age pension payment in February was $22.10 for the state.

The number of beneficiaries, and the average grant for February, in each of the counties of the Appleton area are reported as follows:

County	Number	Average
Brown	623	$18.71
Calumet	180	18.77
Manitowoc	592	21.14
Outagamie	858	20.54

Calcium and Lead May Make Possible New Cable Sheathing

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor
New York—Announcement that calcium, the stuff which hardens bones, also will harden lead to form a new material with possible emergency wartime uses for cable sheathing, was made today by the Bell Telephone Laboratories.

This alloy is one of several substitutes made entirely from American resources, to replace important materials likely to be cut off in war.

In forming lead sheathing, calcium replaces antimony, which comes from China. When calcium was tried for hardening pure lead, one pound of calcium, placed in melted lead, produced about 16 pounds of hardening material. The extra 15 pounds came from the lead itself, due to the electronic configuration of lead and calcium atoms. Thus for each pound of calcium added, there were 16 pounds of effective hardening material.

More than one billion dollars is the present value of the investment in lead cable sheathing in the United States. About $10,000,000 worth of new sheathing is used annually.

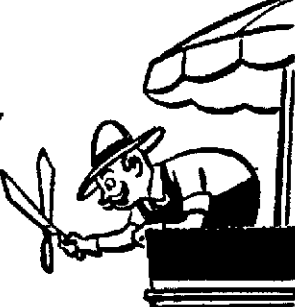

Lead, even alloyed with antimony, tends to crack after long use in cables. To date, the calcium lead seems to show a definite superiority over antimony lead. The calcium percentage is far less than the amount of antimony needed. Almost unlimited stores of calcium are available in the United States.

ARE WE MARCHING ON TO WAR?

The charges from Berlin against American purposes as disclosed by the Polish archives should be read carefully and completely with a discerning and critical eye.

Distinction should immediately be made between what Berlin declares these documents prove and the wording of the documents themselves. The Nazis are adepts at overcoloring intentions and stretching purposes.

But when we have the exact words of the various diplomats we still must reflect that while these men were no doubt loyally trying to tell the attitude of America and its principal rulers they were nevertheless dealing somewhat with hearsay, an article as tricky as mercury and about as difficult to transport.

Mr. Hull immediately issued a statement that neither he nor any of his "associates in the Department of State" ever heard of certain of the conversations. Mr. Hull is a man of the highest honor and dependability. Others may suit themselves but as for us, he is entirely worthy of trust.

But that does not fully answer the charges. In fact the most damaging references had nothing to do with Mr. Hull or the Department of State but with the President who is supreme over the Department of State and yet not a part of it.

When references are made to the President's purposes or actions we have, unfortunately, much evidence upon this side of the water to uphold and support the charges from Berlin.

If the quotations from the original Warsaw documents have been correctly supplied we find Polish diplomats urging their government to stand fast because America, with cash and armies, will back up England and France in any war with Hitler.

This coincides with Mr. Roosevelt's public utterances. How much more strongly our President with his emotional instability may have pressed the same idea in private is not so very difficult to imagine.

For Mr. Roosevelt was threatening Germany from the public platform long before London began preparing for action. In his notorious Chicago address our president carried no dove of peace on his shoulder but snorted out flames of fire like an ancient dragon.

At that time this newspaper mentioned the danger to world order and safety occasioned by the bellicose Roosevelt attitude. It was no particular part of wisdom to see that our President was only throwing a monkey wrench into the machinery, helping destroy the last chance that Europe had of peace by giving diplomats in certain positions a feeling of certainty that Uncle Sam would again share his blood with theirs upon the battle field thus preventing the only thing that could stop war, a compromise.

If the quotations from Warsaw documents are found correct, or if in the flood of evidence public opinion concludes that Mr. Roosevelt's actions have formed an important part of the conditions that led to war a deep sense of shame and humiliation will fall like a pall over our people at their unintentional but material interference in so tragic an affair.

SILVER AND SUSANNA

To see the Administration unable to let go the silver buying heresy, unable to hang on, but determined "to save face" and never fulfill that promise "I will be the first to admit an error" suggests that if our noble president runs again even a winsome song like Happy Days that sounded so promising and inspiring in 1932 should be supplanted by "O Susanna" with its simple whimsies and its darkly uncertainty.

"It rained all night the day I left,
"De weather it was aw,
"De sun so hot I froze to death,
"Susanna, don't you cry"

The buying of silver at far more than its actual market value as far more than the juggling the Administration conceived as a proper means of obtaining prosperity. Why anyone should think that filling government vaults with silver bullion at an artificial and fictitious value, great stacks of it bought from Mexico, would help fill the dinner pails of American workers, only a pink-tea liberal with a near soprano voice could figure out.

It was Grover Cleveland, of whom historians refer as the "Study in Courage" who terminated a dabble by the Republicans under Harrison with the thought that "there is not enough money in the country" and the idea that by forcing silver prices up more money, and more wealth, would be created. During the fifty intervening years the nation has been blessed in keeping its affairs out of the hands of those so funny minded as to believe that a wart exposed to a full moon would drop off a boy's hand or that normalcy in finances could result from this somersault.

To date this Susanna policy has cost us about a billion dollars that is not represented in our national debt. But is there any good reason why we should limit ourselves to silver when tin and iron are in such abundance? In a pinch we could dump a few carloads of blue clay into those Kentucky caverns which conceal our bullion and write that into the books at another billion.

Our tobacco-chewing, boot-wearing, bewhiskered sires, whom the present lily-handed government looks down upon so ferociously, were, whatever their shortcomings, much too smart for any guff like this silver business.

When they had a few beers they sang "O Susanna," but even when they got woozy they didn't believe it.

A NATIONAL PROSECUTOR

In Mr. Dewey's addresses may be seen the secret of his success.

One need not believe with this supreme prosecutor in order to recognize the unusual ability of mind which he possesses in the marshaling of facts, the discarding of the chaff, and the presentation in clear, lucid fashion of his burning, biting conclusions.

There is none of the syrup and charm of Mr. Roosevelt's language. There is all of the punch and swing employed by Roosevelt the Great, whose name and prestige placed his fifth cousin in the White House.

Take this for an example. After developing the operations of WPA, its use and control for political purposes, even its payment back into political pockets of a percentage of its thin pay, Mr. Dewey said:

"For ordinary people extortion is a felony. In the New Deal it is known as remembering the Forgotten Man."

Mr. Dewey never forgets to place emphasis on records that are clear and undeniable. He disdains the making of general charges. He has names, dates, places.

And so he continues:

"There was a special set-up for election day in South Dakota. Listen to these instructions from the Democratic county chairman to the director of the WPA: 'Place this man on WPA on the special set-up you have, as well as will not certify, have looked into affair—has nine votes in family.'"

"Ordinarily men go to jail for these crimes of intimidation and coercion. But under the New Deal that is high statesmanship."

Nor was the speaker any less devastating when he abandoned specific instances for a summary of conclusions:

"The story of WPA is a story of men and women shaken down for contribution for political campaigns, thrown on relief and off relief to meet the election needs of a power-hungry administration."

"It is a calendar of unpunished crimes—broken covenants, disloyalty to the Constitution, abuse of power, intimidation, coercion, extortion and bribery—all committed against the underprivileged and helpless unemployed."

"Never before has an American political party descended to such brazen abuse of the needy. The shame of the New Deal is spread from coast to coast."

Is history in Mr. Dewey repeating itself? Is the campaign of forty years ago to be reproduced? Will a man of integrity and unswerving purpose turn the heads of the American people even against their wishes and force them to look upon and smell of the reeking, putrid mass of infamy constructed and concocted by the Administration out of broken promises, slick words, the distress of millions and the craze for power and applause?

How far Mr. Dewey goes upon the course of ambition is not as important by any means as how clearly he may help in making a careless people think upon the needs of their most precious property, their government.

A Verse for Today

LOVE'S ETERNAL GLORY

He must have loved the warm light in her eyes
That welcomed him when he came home.
She cherished him, and she could not disguise
He was the star lighting her gloam.

And now that he is gone, if he could see
The bloom upon her when his name
Is spoken, he would know eternally
Her love for him remains the same.

Her memories are all so beautiful
That even in the lonely hours,
There are no blighted, shadowed thoughts to cull
But only love's immortal flowers.

Behind her lies the glory of a past
That endless time can never dim.
Before her breaks a morning when, at last,
She will reach out and cling to him.

CENSUS AT THE GRASSROOTS
The invasion-of-privacy protest, which has so suddenly flared up in connection with the 1940 census presents the curious but very human aspect. The issue seems to stem not from the higher but the lower middle groups, and there is a lot of Sinclair Lewis small-town material in the picture.

The big businessman long since has become resigned to answering questions coming from

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN
Washington—Not many people know it, but one factor which induced the president to favor the sale of latest model United States airplanes to the allies was an economic report on Germany made by prominent British economists.

The report is extremely frank, and it shows that instead of being in danger of starvation as in the last war, the new Nazi economy is geared so that Germany can withstand war for years.

This, together with the recent naval and aviation reverses suffered by the British, has convinced both the White House and the state department that the allied situation is extremely grave, and that as of today Hitler actually is the victor in Europe.

What the British have not heretofore realized is that the German people, for a generation have been geared to withstand privation. During the years of the Republic, immediately after the World war, the toll of reparations and the scarcity of food kept the German people down to war level of living. Further, in the six years of Hitler's power they have been on food rations, so that present wartime rations cause no unrest.

NAZI-COMMUNIST SYSTEM

Even more important is the fact that under Nazi economy the great bulk of the people are working for the government. This applies, first, to the mass of petty Nazi officials, which has come to be enormous, and also to labor. For German labor in reality works for the government, wages being standardized and factories being strictly regulated, if not owned by the government. And the Nazi government is extremely careful to see that labor does not get restless.

The middle man or small shopkeeper also is dependent upon the government. He buys his raw materials or his goods at prices fixed by the Nazi officials. And if he fails on his notes, they are not taken up by the bank, which is government-controlled—though how the German banks are able to keep going is a mystery.

In other words, the whole strategy of Hitler is to prevent business collapse and labor unrest—and so far he seems to have been completely successful.

Furthermore, the British economists figure that Germany has raw materials available to keep going a long time. During this war she can tap the rich granaries of Hungary, Yugoslavia, and Rumania, to say nothing of Russia; also her ore and oil.

And at present Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop is working on a gigantic economic tie-up stretching all the way to the Pacific and including Italy, Japan and Russia.

No wonder the British are worried.

BOYS WILL BE BOYS

Boys will be boys even on Capitol Hill, and none cuts more boyish capers than puckish Representatives Jack Houston of Kansas and Luther Patrick of Alabama.

Houston, an alumnus of the stage, and Patrick of the radio, usually perform their horseplay at the expense of pompous colleagues, but they are not above working out on each other. This happened the other day while the dark-browed Kansan was delivering a serious speech on the farm question.

Patrick strode down the aisle and came to a halt directly in front of Houston, fixing him with a stern stare. Patrick said nothing, just stood there looking at Houston with a deadpan expression.

At first Houston paid no attention to this singular behavior, but presently he stopped and stared back. The house began to titter. Finally, Houston said, "I yield to my friend from Alabama."

Patrick studied him for a few moments, then observed, "That won't be necessary. I withdraw my question."

"I thank the gentleman for his very learned and illuminating contribution," replied Houston solemnly, with a deep bow, while the house roared with laughter.

POLITICAL CHAFF

National Chairman John Hamilton is predicting privately that ex-President Hoover will enter the Philadelphia convention with 200 votes, half of them controlled by Joe Pew, powerful Pennsylvania boss. . . . During his recent visit to his home state, Kansas, Secretary of War Harry Woodring told friends he expects to return there with his family next year. . . . Republican leaders are prophesying that if former Nebraska Governor A. J. Weaver wins the nomination for senator, while anti-New Deal Senator Ed Burke is renominated on the Democratic ticket, the state GOP organization will openly support Burke in the fall election. Weaver, a Norris-liberal, campaigned for Roosevelt in 1936. . . . A recent local election that has caused much lifting of political eyebrows was the mayoralty primary in St. Paul, Minn., in which John McDough, backed by Farmer-Labor forces, scored a surprising victory over Mayor Fallon, supported by the GOP. Two years ago the Farmer-Laborites were swept out of office, and the politicians wonder if the St. Paul ballot presages a comeback.

an ever increasingly inquisitive government; and the city dweller, because his neighbors no matter how close, are remote, doesn't much care. Wendell Willkie, utility magnate, speaks for bigness: "I've been examined so frequently by federal commissions, the SEC, federal boards, etc., that I don't think anyone could ask a question—pertinent, impertinent, personal or otherwise—that I haven't answered."

But here is a possible scene in the village of say, Stringtown on the Pike:

The citizenry there for some years has been regaled with, and envious of, the large salaries and commissions reported by big-city big shots—information pried out by New Deal edict for the enlightenment of all who get less. That was all right. But now in Stringtown Joe Zilch, fellow-townsmen, has been named census taker and suddenly put into a position to know all and see all. He bears with him the majesty of the law and the threat of the jailhouse. Soon he will knock on the door of Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, and demand to look at their tonsils—even as the tonsils, now well explored, of Mr. Wendell Willkie have been explored.

Well, that's different. And besides, despite all the inhibitions against latrine prescribed in the census law, the Smiths' instinct tells them that fellow-townsmen Joe Zilch will confide in his wife and a few friends as to the Smith income, the mortgage and the 'athtub or lack thereof. And there you have backslide circulation possibilities amounting to complete saturation.

So what is happening is a grassroots challenge. And, this being an election year, congressmen are tender toward the grassroots.

There is material in all this for another "Main Street."—New York World-Telegram.

A Bystander
In Washington

BY JACK STINNETT

Washington—Into the office of "Cactus Jack" Garner the other day came "Cactus Harry" Carey.

Stinnett

Occasion for this yarn was that the two got to reminiscing and out of that came a remarkable example of how life goes 'round and 'round. John Nance Garner, the son of a westerner, becomes a big politician. Harry Carey, it is said, is a big New York politician, becomes a westerner.

Mr. Garner, no doubt, could give Harry cards and spades and beat him to death at the political game, put Carey Pere would have given Mr. Carey a run for his money.

"Poc," says Harry, "was one of old Richard Croker's Tammany district leaders in Brooklyn and a judge of the court of special sessions."

Carried an Umbrella
"He anticipated Chamberlain by about 50 years—used to wear a high silk hat and carry an umbrella, rain or shine. Only difference was he used it all the time—used it to keep the sun off as well as the rain."

"Golly, what a bunch of thieves they had around Tammany in those days. Even Pop had a franchise. It was for a two-mile horse-car railway through Pelham Bay park. Pop set it up and charged 10-cent fare."

"Seems like there was a state law in those days that you couldn't charge more than five cents on any street railway," so Pop was called up to Albany, umbrella and all.

"They put him on the pan, told him he'd violated the law, and Pop says, 'Now, gentlemen, I know the law. For years I have been on the bench. Doesn't that law say that no one street railway company can charge more than five cents? But does it say anything about two companies not being able to charge five cents each? Well, Gentlemen, my two-mile railway is owned by two companies. One owns one mile, another the next. You can look up the articles of incorporation. And, gentlemen, if you want to sit here and issue an order that the thousands of poor people who ride those railways have to get off at the end of the first mile, in torrential rains and bitter cold, and transfer to the other company's railway just to comply with a silly law, then I guess I'll have to take the matter up with the voters.'"

"Well that was the last Pop ever heard of that."

More Trouble

"He did have a little trouble later on when they were building a wooden bridge across City Island. Pop wanted to run his horse-car line across there. They wouldn't stand for it. So one night, after the bridge was finished, Pop got a mixed gang of his Italian and Irish voters together and between midnight and dawn they laid those rails across that bridge."

"The next morning Old Dobbin was pulling the car across the bridge and the car was met with an armed force. Pop was on board and waving his umbrella. He just grinned when the car was stopped and he shouted: 'Gentlemen, if you want to hold up the United States mail, you'll have to take the consequences.' And right in their faces he waved a full government mail pouch."

"How Pop ever got the United States government to throw in with him on that, I don't know, but that horse-car carried U. S. mail as long as the opposition could remember."

"Yessir, Pop was a great politician," concludes Carey.

Pop has my vote, Harry. He undoubtedly could give the modern boys aces in the hole and beat them with a deuce-down draw, even with Vice President Garner in the game.

The difference is the difference between two men, both of them key figures in the present capitol regime, efficient, decisive Elmer E. Barlow of the tax department, and blustery, amateurish August Frey of the research bureau.

Over a period of weeks Frey fed capitol reporters stories of what he would do with the highway commission. There was so much publicity, and so much time before actual action was attempted, that opponents were able to organize themselves and to put on a campaign which the governor later found was too much for him.

The reasons for and against reorganization of the field offices of both departments are essentially the same. Both are service agencies in the branch headquarters. But in one department the service is going to be reduced in the interest of economy, and in the other it will be kept on the same level because the administration wasn't strong enough to oppose the public opinion which opponents had time enough to create.

EAST IS EAST AND WEST IS WEST...

Under the Capitol Dome

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—There is a moral in the fact that one of the departmental reorganization programs in the Heil administration recently announced has been carried through successfully, while another along identical lines has failed abjectly.

The real reason why the administration had to retreat in the highway department reorganization plan while

Personal Health Talks

SOME PARENTS CAN TALK IT

Our children, complains an extraordinarily timid parent, seems to be the victims of two unnatural, nasty old maids, who have made a rule that pupils cannot leave the room to go to lavatory unless they bring notes from their doctors saying they are in ill health. This seems outrageous. It is impossible to believe that type of teacher or principal is tolerated in our public school system today. (Signed

15 Extra Boats Rounded Up for Rent to Visiting Anglers

New London—Motion pictures of a moose hunt in Ontario, Canada, and elk and goat hunting in British Columbia entertained more than 100 members of the New London Fish and Game club at the Veterans of Foreign Wars hall last night. The pictures were filmed and shown by Edwin Marheine of Oshkosh. Also shown were rough fishing operations on Lake Winnebago and pictures of duck, geese and swan. Some of the films were in natural color.

Two fishing contests to open with the pike season April 15 were announced for anglers of the New London area. One will be conducted by Henry W. Spenbraker for all species of fish and the other by A. A. Trambauer for pike only. Contestants must register with the sponsors before submitting prize catches.

An effort to round up fishing boats to rent to visitors during the pike run revealed only about 15 extra boats available. Members with boats available for hire were instructed to leave them with M. J. Heinz, G. A. Konrad or Paul Koenke, to whom visitors would be directed.

Survey Will Be Made
A letter from the state conservation department was read, advising the club that a survey will be made in this area in April to determine the advisability of planting aquatic vegetation as food and cover for waterfowl. The planting was requested by the club. If provided, the material will be delivered in May.

Mark Catlin, Sr., of Appleton, a member of the commission, was scheduled to speak before the club last night but was unable to attend. Tentative plans were made to hold the May meeting at the shelter house at Hatten park with special entertainment. Harry Allen, Art Unger and M. J. Heinz will be the committee in charge.

Lunch was served to the large attendance last night and special prizes were received by Art Unger, Charles Nicolai, Norbert Arent, Emmert Eichorst, F. M. Griswold, Leonard Rice, Harold Kitowski and Jack Humblet.

10 Couples to Give Third Dancing Party Of Series Saturday

Woman's Club Is Told About Motion Pictures

Chilton—Irvin E. Deer, a representative of Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, was the guest speaker at the meeting of the Chilton Woman's club at the city hall Monday afternoon. In his talk on "How We Improve Our Movies," Mr. Deer went back to 1920 when everyone was demanding newer and better movies and the women's clubs and various church organizations started working toward that end. State censorship was found inadequate because each state had different ideas of censorship but finally in 1934, he said, the production code administration was formed and most of the producers signed it. He said the administration at first censored the releases but finding that too expensive to the producers, they now censor the script and the movies are then made from the censored script.

Music for the program was furnished by Mrs. Adam Aldorfer who gave a piano solo entitled "Ballet

1 1/2 cups brown sugar

Mix butter, confectioners' sugar and cake flour until thoroughly blended. Spread in a pan about 11 by 15 inches. Spread with batter from remaining ingredients as follows: Beat eggs until light and add brown sugar. Add the 2 tablespoons flour and baking powder which has been sifted together. My Neighbor Says—

The following desserts are quickly prepared: Toast, sponge or angel food cake slices. Spread them with preserved fruit or jam. Surround several with bananas, berries and oranges. If you have a supply of shredded coconut on hand toast some of that and sprinkle a little over the top of each dessert.

Wait until your refrigerator desserts are half frozen before you add fruits. Otherwise the fruit is likely to freeze into hard, ice-like pieces.

Fulfills Bid With Smother Type of Play

BY ELY CULBERTSON

If a declarer plays a hand magnificently, it can be justly said that he deserves success, regardless of the fact that victory was possible only thru the help of the opponents. This applies in the fullest sense to a hand such as the following:

North, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

NORTH		EAST
♠ A 5 2		♠ None
♥ 8 5 2		♥ 7 4 3
♦ 7 3		♦ K Q J 10 5 4 2
♣ A K 8 3 2		♣ K Q J 10

WEST		SOUTH
♠ 7 6 4 3		♠ K 10 9 8
♥ J 10 9 6		♥ A K Q
♦ 9 7		♦ A 8
		♣ A 6 5 4

The bidding:
North 1 club 4 diamonds 5 spades
East 1 club 4 diamonds 5 spades
South 1 club 4 diamonds 5 spades
West 1 club 4 diamonds 5 spades

As may be seen, South was put squarely on the spot by East's pre-emptive diamond bid. With four-plus honor tricks and a good five-card suit, South cannot be blamed for having slam aspirations. But how to investigate slam possibilities and, at the same time, maintain a fairly safe game position, was a problem I am just as glad I was not called upon to solve. Actually, there is no good bid on South's hand over four diamonds. Four spades is absurdly conservative. Neither a five-diamond cue bid nor a four no trump bid is at all satisfactory, inasmuch as these bids leave the partnership in the dark as to what the final denomination should be.

South, of course, could not contract for a slam in clubs with only three to the six spot, particularly since North's suit might be very short. All in all, then, I feel that South's five spade bid was the least of all evils. West might well have held his fire in the hope of getting a chance to double six spades, but obviously lacked the self-control.

A diamond was opened. Declarer won and laid down the spade jack. West naturally did not cover, and when East showed out, declarer realized that he had a tough job on his hands. He continued with the spade ten, which also held. The three top hearts then were cashed, as were the ace and king of clubs, and then a club was led from dummy. East won and collected his diamond trick. West, having discarded a diamond on the third club, now blithely discarded his last heart, grimly holding on to his trumps. This was exactly what declarer had hoped for. South now was down to the K-9-8 of spades, while West had the Q-7-6, dummy had the blank space ace and two clubs, and East, of course, was reduced to diamonds.

Now, on East's forced diamond return, declarer ruffed with the spade eight and West might as well have thrown his cards out of the window. If West over-ruffed with the queen, dummy would in turn over-ruff with the ace, and declarer would take the last two tricks with the king and nine. On West's actual under-ruff play, it was just as easy for South. The eight spot held the trick and now declarer had the two high trumps.

If West had foreseen what was coming and, instead of discarding his last heart, had deliberately ruffed East's diamond trick, then put declarer in dummy with a trump to pick up the spade queen. But at the West was very helpful to declarer, the latter deserves full credit for the beautiful execution of his "smother play," and for the fact that he lost no trump trick to West's formidable length.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

Nothing is more soothing than the gentle herb facial given by a famous Viennese cosmetologist.

Three Queens have entrusted their complexions to the expert hands of a famous Viennese beautician who is a world-wide authority on cosmetology. From formulas found in ancient manuscripts, this woman has created fragrant aids from simple herbs, flowers, natural oils, honeys and vinegars. She also has a unique method of treating the skin.

She believes strongly in waking up lazy pores and making them work. This is done by giving the skin a steam bath of herbs and flowers—an aromatic infusion to stimulate pore action. As you breathe deeply of this brew, with head covered, every little facial pore is opened as your body relaxes. Then you are served a delicious, hot tisane. A cup of peppermint, orange blossom, thyme, camomile, spearmint or verveine tea. This aids the discharge of body poisons through the opened pores, leaving your skin free to receive the benefits of exquisite creams and ointments.

Very Little Massage
Quite contrary to our American facial methods, Madame does not condone vigorous face massage, nor the application of ice on the skin as a final tonic. Instead she depends upon a deep, deep, frothy cleanser, lightly applied and removed, followed by rich vitalizing oils and unguents.

If your face muscles are too relaxed, or flabby, you are given a firming mask made of honey, apricot or geranium oil. You feel the thin film tightening enlarged pores and refining the skin—no pack, no tying-up, no discomfort. This famed and gracious lady assures you that only five minutes a day is required to cleanse, freshen and lubricate plus ten minutes twice a week for an infusion complexion bath. From a well tested and highly praised assortment of aids, you choose the two or three most necessary for proper care of your specific skin type.

The "Succup" of Delight
For centuries the beauty of Viennese women has been lauded, and they have earned the praise by being meticulous in the care of their beauty. Many of them—gracious leaders of Continental society, the theater and the arts—have come to this "herb beauty doctor" to preserve or renew their loveliness. So needless to say, the finishing touch of a delightful facial is exquisitely blended make-up—rouge, lipstick, powder and eye shadow—applied with consummate art. You leave the little herb beauty feeling gayly lovely, and realizing that Vienna's loveliness is America's gain. One more fragrant road to beauty opened for those of you who believe a woman should keep vibrantly beautiful, as an inspiration for goodly progress instead of world destruction!

Miss Lindsay will be happy to provide you with the names of cosmetics referred to if you desire. Write her care of this paper and enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope to cover cost of mailing.

Allowances Must be Made For Differences in Children

BY ANGELO PATRI

Allowances must be made for differences between children. No two are alike, not even identical twins, and nobody ought to expect them to be. But the kind of difference, and the degrees of it, are important in measuring its desirability or undesirability. We cannot expect to have children according to our preferred patterns. We must take them as they come with all their failings and all their virtues on their heads. If one child is a musician and the next one tone deaf, and the parents want musicians, the difference in the children must be accepted and the tone deaf one protected from any criticism, even implicit criticism. That kind of difference is fixed, like the color of the eyes.

Suppose one child is highly intelligent and the next one markedly dull? That is a situation that hurts the father and mother, and the unfortunate child. Again, it must be accepted. Whatever special help can be given the dull child is given, but all hope of making him as bright as the other must be abandoned and that cheerfully for the child's sake. That difference, too, is set.

One child likes routine, another dislikes it. This makes living with one child pleasanter than with the other. Now that difference can be modified, fixed greatly. Routine can be established with a high degree of success even in children who dislike it because it is a mechanical process set by the clock. The routine will not affect the quality of the work accomplished during its influence to any great extent. Good work comes only when the spirit is willing and the whole being in harmony. But the routine may help in secondary fashion.

Sometimes after the natural resistance to disciplined work is broken down, the spirit warms to the task and a taste is formed for something that was disliked before. For that reason we use routine in all schools. It does help to modify differences in accomplishments that are dependent upon discipline.

But basic differences remain as characteristics of children and they must be respected if we are to live in peace with the children and they with us. It is unjust to keep trying to force a personal pattern upon the lives of children. Each must fulfill his own pattern if he is to be a complete human being. Trying to make him into somebody else is painful to him and must in the end be disappointing to him who tried it.

Another injustice that hurts children in this field of growth is the implication that they are different from the good members of their family. "You don't look a bit like your brother," brother being handsome and praised for accomplishments. "Isn't it funny you have such straight hair and your mother and sister have such beautiful curls?"

Remarks of this kind are funny to the child who is different. Personal remarks on children's differences, physical or spiritual or merely habitual actions are distressing to the children who often react to them in terms of bad behavior. Such remarks are unworthy of intelligent people.

Our duty to children is to help them make a good account of their talents and to disregard the differences that comparison with other children disclose. If each child makes the most of what good he has in him he will do quite as well as his brother, or sister, whatever the difference.

Nagging Woman Must Help Herself to Get New Outlook

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—What can I do to change a bad disposition? I used to be a gay, pleasant, popular girl, but since I was married ten years ago I have become mean. I don't know why, because my husband is a sweet, noble person who apparently still loves me, though heaven alone knows why he does. I hate to spend money, although we have a good income. I bark at my two little boys, who are just normal, playful, healthy, noisy children, and I am afraid that I am making them nervous with my constant nagging. My husband greatly resents my manner with them, yet will do nothing to discipline them himself. Before I was married I was a copy writer in an advertising agency and loved it, being completely absorbed in it. I often long for the hustle and bustle of a busy office, but my husband would not want me to go back, as it is not necessary for me to work. I am not interested in keeping house and I do not care for club or organization work. I am physically well and strong, but inclined to be nervous, but what I need is a different point of view. How am I to get it?

ANXIOUS TO CHANGE.

Answer: A woman as intelligent as your letter shows you to be knows the answer to that question, but lacks the courage to answer it honestly and take the bitter medicine it calls for to cure her.

Nobody on the outside can help her. She has to help herself. She has to be her own doctor. No surgeon can cut out the selfishness in a self-centered egotist. No physician knows any drug that will soothe out the rough places in an irritable, high-tempered woman's disposition and make her sweet and amiable. The woman who knows that she is self-centered and shrewish has to eradicate her own faults by forcing herself to think of other people and shutting down her teeth on her nagging and her sharp speeches.

You see your own faults. Why don't you correct them? You can if you wish to. It is just a matter of will power. People make me smile when they say they can't control their emotions, because they can and do when it is to their interest to do it. The temperamental man who flies in rages at her husband and can't talk back to her boss when she had just wanted to get on her nerves with their noise can listen to a jazz band braying in her ears and like it. So there you are.

Evidently you are bored with your husband and children and home and want to get back into the busy world. Well, you deliberately choose marriage as a career. Why can't you be so good and make the best of your bargain? Lots of people have to do work that they don't like, but if they have any real brains and intellectual fortitude they don't smother themselves in self-pity and get morbid and neurotic as you have done. They quit looking over the fence into the green pastures beyond, and do the work they have set their hands to do so well that they learn to like it.

And, believe me, the new point of view which you are seeking lies right under your eyes, only you shut them and will not see it. It is to quit thinking about being happy yourself and try to make your husband and children happy. For the only way we can ever find any real happiness is in doing our duty. It is to be a gentle and patient mother instead of a nagger. It is to force yourself to curb your miserliness by giving; to turn a smiling face instead of a discontented one on the world.

When I see a woman like you, with youth and health and a fine mind, with a loving husband, splendid children and a beautiful home, I am sorry to see her so miserable and in luxury, yet who does not pay God even a poor compliment of being satisfied and happy with the great gifts he has lavished upon her. I wonder if she doesn't strain even his infinite mercy and make him very tired.

YESTERDAY: Chris and Direk drove out on Long Island in blizzard. They see Richard's mother and break the news of Richard's death. The storm has cut off communications.

Chapter 32

BACK TO THE CITY

Once or twice I thought she was going to speak, her lips opened a moment forming words, then with a half sigh she pressed her teeth against her lower lip without saying anything. In a few minutes a nurse appeared, a door opened, and Mr. MacDonald saw her. "Mr. MacDonald will see you," she said curtly.

We followed her up a wide, unlighted stairway to a room directly at the head of it, a room so large that even the massive walnut bed against the far wall seemed dwarfed.

I knew, of course, that Mr. MacDonald was ill, but I wasn't expecting to see the frail, wasted figure that lay there on the bed. "Friends of Richard's," he said in a high, quavery voice, the voice we'd heard down in the motor. "He stretched wrinkled bony hand out to us. 'Friends of Richard's,' he repeated. 'Why doesn't he come home? Why doesn't Joan come home to me?'"

I felt my knees go weak. Direk put an arm across my shoulders. The poor old man hadn't been told, but it was probably better. He seemed close to death himself.

"I'm worried about Joan," he went on. "She isn't happy." Then suddenly his voice gained strength. "That man—that man—he means no good to her. I know."

Gasping, he turned his head on the pillow and as the nurse hurried to him, she motioned us to leave. In the hall I clutched Direk's arm. "What did he mean? Who was he talking about?"

We looked at each other, then Direk shook his head and we started downstairs. At the foot of the stairway Mrs. MacDonald met us,

THE HOME GARDENER

by EDWIN H. PERKINS

Gardeners who desire the newest in plant life can well select sorts which have proved medal winners in the All American Selections for 1940. These mentioned prospered under normal conditions in various sections of the country. Wasteful methods are not recommended for these novelties since the seeds are both scarce and expensive.

The small-flowered petunias, glow and cream star head the list as first and second. Sow them at once outdoors where they are to flower. Seeds will germinate in 2 to 3 weeks, depending on weather. A new aster, Midget Blue, is third winner. Many of you know the aster as a painter's brush. Sow it only after warm nights are assured. We all have need for a rust-resistant snapdragon. Those which are allergic to rust become bothersome in damp weather. Anthrimum Rosalie is such a plant. Sow seeds outdoors now. They will germinate under favorable conditions and are little affected by slight chill when once started.

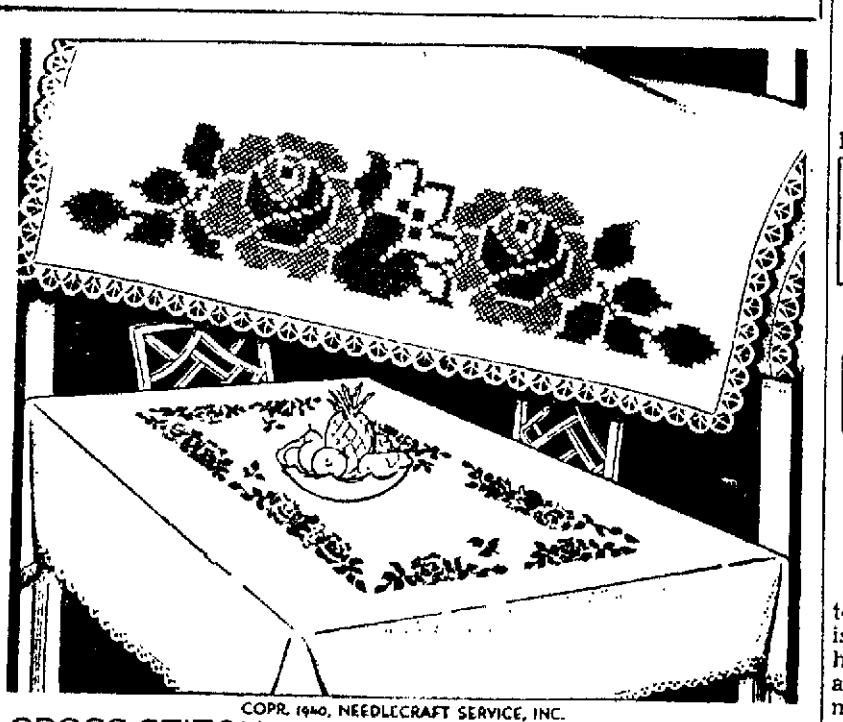

A different scabiosa, Heavenly Blue by name, is a find worth having. Heavenly Blue is quite an improvement over the older pin-cushion flowers of grandmothers' day. So is the new aster, Rose Marie. The claim is made that it is free from wilt and all the other disadvantages associated with asters. Sowing seeds of the last two should be delayed until warm nights are the rule. Purchasing of seeds, however, cannot be put off, that is if you expect to try these medal winners.

The snow was so thick and wet that it blinded us and the back road we were on was completely deserted. There didn't seem a chance in a thousand that anyone would come along on such a day. It was after four o'clock and snowing harder than ever. No one in their right mind would come out in a car in such weather.

Finally I got back in the car and Direk left to go back to the MacDonalds for help. I waited and

Number of Morons Can be Reduced by Education-Flory

Studies Show Good Environment Can Boost Intelligence Rating

The hope of reducing the number of morons in the United States appears to be one of education more than biology, Dr. Charles D. Flory, professor of education at Lawrence college, said in a talk before the Appleton Lions club yesterday noon in the Conway hotel.

Describing morons as having the intelligence of children from 7 to 10 years of age, he said they "have normal emotions with little or no emotional control."

He reported that eugenicists have estimated that if morons were kept from reproducing, their number could be reduced 11 per cent in a generation or from present estimate of 330,000 to around 290,000. The reduction would be smaller in succeeding generations.

The Lawrence professor declared that intelligence "is not an amount or a capacity but a potentiality, something that many develop with cultivation, an energy that gets greater with use."

He pointed to the great differences in environment that make in children's ability by citing studies made among Virginia mountain children by psychologists.

In "pockets" in the mountains, the psychologists found families that have been residing in the same place "for generations." He said the "first families of Virginia" couldn't believe that among these children, only one in 20 knew what a ball was, none had heard of football, and only three in 20 knew the days of the week.

Tested Again

He said the "first families of Virginia" after the survey was published, demanded that the psychologists return and test the children on subjects related to their own environment.

It was then found that to the majority of the children of 12 years of age, all flowers were mere "plants" and all birds simply "birds," that species were unknown to them. Dr. Flory said that when these children were six years of age, they were "about normal" but that by the time they were 12, lack of stimulation had made "the dull ones catch up with the bright ones."

He said that University of Iowa studies made among foster children, whose mothers and fathers were of a generally low economic and educational level, showed conclusively that the environment of a cultured, well-informed home could bring a child's intelligence rating above what it would have been had he or she lived in inferior surroundings.

He related the results of a test he made among 88 Lawrence college seniors. Matching their intelligence quotients with the marks they made as freshmen, he found that they advanced an average of 8 points during their four years, that five of them who were in the lower bracket as freshmen added 20 points, and that two men whose freshmen I. Q. ratings were below average had improved by 40 points.

waited, cold, damp, and anxious about Dirck. It seemed finally as though he'd had time to make the trip half a dozen times.

"Pretty jittery."

"Then I heard a shout and Dirck ran up with a strange man and a boy and I wondered how many servants they had at the MacDonaldis. Finally the three of them managed to get the car started and we were on our way again."

"A funny thing happened," Dirck told me as we got back to the comparative safety of the main road. "I went back to the MacDonaldis and couldn't get an answer to my knock. And I could swear I saw that old colored man looking out at me from the picture window. It made me pretty jittery. I can tell you, when I saw him and he made no move to let me in. After all, we'd just left the house. Where was Mr. MacDonald, do you suppose?"

I looked at him. "Good heavens, Dirck."

"Anyway," he continued, "I went on down the road to a farmhouse and got them to come back with me."

It was strange. Certainly Mrs. MacDonald couldn't have refused to let me in. Particularly since she mentioned the bad roads. I thought it over during the drive back to town, but got nowhere in my own inimitable fashion.

By the time we crossed the bridge the streets were fairly free of snow, so we made good time going downtown. Dirck was pretty much upset and when finally we reached 12 George Street he breathed a sigh of relief. The shop was brightly lighted and there were several policemen on the sidewalk in front of the house. Dirck turned to me and our eyes met.

Something had gone wrong while we were out on the island.

Sergeant Long was standing in the doorway of the shop. When he spotted the yellow car he hurried over to us.

"What's up?" Dirck asked in a strained voice.

"Plenty," the Sergeant said. "We aren't through with this yet. He's skipped, but we'll find him."

Dirck's hands dropped from the wheel, but he said nothing. His eyes were fixed intently on the Sergeant.

"Who's skipped?" I asked, pulling off my wet gloves.

"Whitefield," I dropped the gloves.

The Sergeant rested an arm on the door of the car. "Yup, he beat it this morning. Two detectives traced him as far as his studio and from there on they drew a blank. He left there and they lost him in the crowd. They called me about it, but I didn't really get suspicious until he didn't turn up tonight."

"His voice rose. 'I thought he was getting funny like that damn fool, Kincaid. He's been playing games with the detective all day. Half a dozen times Norton lost him, and Kincaid was doing it just for fun.'"

"So he's gone," Dirck said absently.

The Sergeant nodded. "Yes and his car's gone, too. He made a clean getaway."

"I should think anyone would recognize him in that overcoat," I said. "It covered him like a shroud."

"Oh, he was smart," the Sergeant said. "Everyone got used to seeing him in that overcoat and he knew it. So he left it behind and wore a tan topcoat. You'd better come in it's cold," he added.

Arctic Explorer

As Dirck and I got out of the car Mr. Kimball came to the door of the shop and invited us in for coffee. Dirck said that would be fine. We could go out for dinner later. Then I saw Mr. Kimball looking at me with curiosity and some amusement. I was dripping wet and gotten up like an Arctic explorer with Dirck's automobile robe still around my shoulders.

"You go upstairs and change your young lady," he said. "This evening I'll have Patrick build a fire in your room. You shouldn't have been out in weather like this."

I hurried upstairs, too tired and too excited to worry much about being soaked to the skin. But I took a hot shower and put on my blue knitted frock to ward off pneumonia and went back to the shop.

Tim Lathrop had come in while I was upstairs. He was standing by the window, looking out on the street, paying no apparent attention to Dirck and the Sergeant, arguing heatedly over something at Mr. Kimball's desk. He drew up a chair for me by the fireplace.

"I don't believe it," Dirck was saying positively. "He'd have no reason to harm Jean. Why, he barely knew her. Did he, Mr. Kimball?"

"I never even saw them speak to each other," Mr. Kimball said. "He can't be the one you're after, Sergeant."

"Who am I after, then?" the Sergeant roared. "Mrs. Evans keeps saying it's you."

"This won't get us any where," Dirck said hastily.

"Well, tell me why Whitefield is missing," the Sergeant snapped, tilting his chair back against the

Revive Hopes for New Dormitories At Veteran's Home

Governor Asks Holden to Make Study of Building Needs at Waupaca

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—That improvements at the ancient GAR home for veterans near Waupaca which have been demanded for years may be obtained next year is suggested with the disclosure that Governor Neil has asked Commandant William Holden of the home to make a survey of the immediate building needs, the proposed location of the new facilities, type of construction, cost, and other details.

According to capitol reports, Governor Neil has tentatively endorsed inclusion of a construction program in the next biennial budget if he is retained in office.

Meanwhile, it is possible that groundwork for the improvements may be laid as the result of a WPA granite quarry project in Marinette county which is being discussed by WPA officials, spokesmen for the Marinette county board, and the state department of public welfare.

If the Marinette county board accepts the offer of Director Frank Klose of the welfare department, the county may sponsor a WPA project near Amberg and use the camp facilities owned there by the welfare department to house WPA workers. Quarried stone would be reserved for the use of the GAR home when the building program there is authorized, it was explained.

Officials of the veterans' home at Waupaca have appeared at every recent legislative session to plead for appropriations to build new dormitory facilities, a new hospital and power house, arguing that fire hazards now are high at the institution which houses hundreds of aged men and women.

Peace Efforts of President Wilson's Envoy, Col. House, Took Headlines 25 Years Ago

BY VIOLA HELLMERMANN

The first World war was eight months old 25 years ago this week, and President Wilson's newest effort to bring about peace had met with failure. Like President Roosevelt in 1940 President Wilson in 1915 sent a personal emissary to Europe to investigate the possibilities of peace. The emissary was Colonel E. M. House. After he had conferred with Sir Edward Grey of England, Rene Viviani, French prime minister and Herr von Jaeger, secretary of German foreign affairs, he was convinced that peace negotiations were out of the question.

In Poland the Russians and Germans were burning the towns and farms over which they were fighting. In the Dardanelles the Anglo-French fleet had repulsed a violent bombardment of the Turkish ports. Heavy rains hindered operations along the battle front in France and Flanders, but whenever the weather permitted, there was lively artillery fighting between the French and Germans. In the Carpathian mountains the Austrian and Russians were engaged in a great battle. Two British liners, the Falaba and Flaminian, were sunk by German submarines. Serbia was in the grip of death-dealing epidemic of typhus.

Christmas Time

The only bright note in the war stories was a belated account of the Christmas truce at the western front. Written by Phil Rader, American soldier with the French army, the story had just come to America. It told how the French and Germans in his section had arranged a 1-hour truce on Christmas day to bury the dead which lay in the strip of land 45 feet wide between the two trenches. But the 1-hour truce lasted all day, while the enemies played cards with each other, exchanged tobacco and took pictures of French and German soldiers with their arms about each other. When evening came a German band played the French "Marseillaise," and to return the courtesy, an American Negro cook in the French trenches played on his mouth organ "Die Wacht Am Rhein."

The next day, however, Europe had again gone mad, and the men who had been friends the previous day were enemies, bent on killing each other.

The end of March, 1915, found the empire of Austria-Hungary, which had suffered a crushing defeat earlier in the month with the fall of Przemyśl, further pressed. According to a dispatch from Petrograd on March 31, 6,000 Russians supported by light artillery had poured through the Dukla pass and now occupied positions in Hungary. Though the Russian war office made no comment of the fact, it was known that at least 100,000 troops from the army that had besieged Przemyśl were now striking at the Austrian positions.

Awakening to the seriousness of the situation in which he lay found himself, Germany was hurrying at least three army corps into Hungary to plug the gaps in the Austrian line.

An announcement of especial interest to Americans was that made March 25, 1915, by members of the United States Central Belgian Relief commission:

"It will cost the United States $150,000,000 annually to feed the Belgians if this is to be a war of years. Our committee is spending $3,000,000 a month now to feed 1,500,000 Belgians, but the number of dependent Belgians is increasing every day, and those we are feeding are reported to be on half rations."

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Klein have taken up residence in the former Mrs. Katherine Schmieder home on Custer street. The apartment they vacated in the upper flat of the Mrs. John Bringham home on Columbus street has been occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Schneider.

bookshelves. "I gave everyone in this house instructions not to leave unless they went to business, or left word where they were going. Not that anyone paid attention to my orders," he added with a sharp look at me.

"I took her out with me this afternoon," Dirck said quickly.

The Sergeant tested his feet on the desk. "Whitefield was running away. An innocent man covers leave buildings by fire escapes for no good reason. He found he was being followed this morning and ran upstairs to his studio, locked the door and left by the fire escape."

"Where is his studio?" Dirck asked.

"It's that place on West Tenth Street, under the name of Leon Perry."

Dirck raised his eyebrows. "Where Miss Wells went yesterday?"

"Sure," the Sergeant said. "She went around to warn him. Perry is supposed to be a friend of Whitefield's, according to the old man who runs the apartments, but no one in the building has ever seen this guy Perry."

"And that's where he works?"

"Yup. It's all full of paints and stuff."

So Mr. Whitefield had another studio. Somehow it didn't sound right to me. I thought rapidly. "What exposure does his place on Tenth Street have, Sergeant?"

The Sergeant frowned. "The house is on the south side of the street," he said slowly, "and his studio is in the back. By gosh, it's southern!" He jumped to his feet. "That's right, Miss Howarth, you said yesterday that artists always have northern exposure." He patted me on the shoulder and reached for the telephone.

Neubauer Describes Duties of Sheriff at Lions Club Meeting

Menasha — Paul Neubauer, Winnebago county sheriff, outlined a sheriff's duties in a talk before the Menasha Lions club Monday noon at Hotel Menasha. He described the routine of handling prisoners and commented on the value of finger printing.

The California department sent the prints to Washington. From there a list of men arrested is sent to all sheriff's departments and the Winnebago department was able to identify the man and bring him back for trial.

Health, Safety in Industry Termed Aid to Community

Physician Traces Growth Of Movement to Prevent Accident Losses

Neenah — Dr. George H. Williamson, vice president and medical director of the Equitable Reserve association, declared that "Health in industry reflects the health of a community" in a talk in which he traced the development of "Medicine and Health in Industry" at the noon luncheon of the Neenah club Monday. It was the final noon meeting of the season.

Those in industry, the doctor said, carry health knowledge back into the community and elevate the tone of health in that community. The physician talked about the railroads and their programs, pointing out that the railroads were among the first to employ physicians. At first, the doctors took care of only those employees injured, but then it developed into a program of examinations, seeking illnesses and defects. The railroad doctors organized and studied newer and better methods of treatment.

The safety first plan was originated by the railroads, and it made a marked difference in the number of accidents. This plan developed into a national safety council until now the full effect of safety campaigns is apparent.

Cities Progress
The physician pointed out that before industry opened its health programs, employees who were injured not only were deprived of their wages but had to pay for their own care, the companies assuming no responsibilities. The industrial workman's compensation law was conceived and it changed the status of the employees. Insurance followed as did the amendment recognizing industrial disease as well as industrial accidents.

Until that time, Dr. Williamson pointed out, surgeons were no more than repairmen, but the new idea was born 20 years ago when firms realized that the cost of illness was a great drain on industry.

The doctor related the difficulties encountered with employees at the outset of the health programs, especially those who objected at first to being examined. He outlined the health work being done in industry, illustrating with the work being done in the Kimberly-Clark corporation.

The shooting corresponded with shooting from behind a barricade for the policeman's protection, each man shooting 10 shots right handed and 10 shots left handed with a time limit of 20 seconds, according to Lieutenant H. W. Kapp, who is in charge of the shooting sessions.

Music later was furnished by a men's quartet, Theodore Peterson, Lloyd Olson, Philip Teisberg and Tom Hanson; duet by Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hanson; a girl's sextet; violin selections by LaVerne Larson accompanied by Miss Luther, and a brief talk by the Rev. Leo Anderson of Our Saviour's Lutheran church.

The Andersons were presented with a purse of money from the congregation. They left Monday for Kenosha where they will visit for a few days before proceeding to their new home in Farmington, Maine, where he will be pastor of the Emmanuel Lutheran church. Lois, Miriam and James accompanied their parents but Irene, Raymond, Grace and Amy will not go until June after schools close.

Arkansas High Court Sets Aside Divorce

Little Rock, Ark.—The Arkansas supreme court in an oral opinion yesterday set aside a divorce decree obtained by John Arnold of Manson, Wis., from his wife, under Kansas 90-day divorce law.

Arnold, a Spanish-American war veteran, came to Little Rock last fall and established residence for three months. He filed suit and obtained a divorce in Pulaski (Little Rock) chancery court, then returned to Wisconsin.

Mrs. Arnold, now living in Tulsa, Okla., learning of the divorce before expiration of the six-month period in which an appeal can be taken, appealed to the supreme court. She asked the tribunal to issue an order directing Arnold to furnish $61 in "suit money" with which to prepare a transcript of testimony in the lower court.

The court issued the order on the ground that the husband is obligated to pay the cost of his wife's defense. Arnold, back in Wisconsin out of the supreme court's jurisdiction, failed to comply with the order, and the supreme court then ordered the decree set aside.

Communist Journal Submits Statement

Washington—P.—O. John Regge, assistant attorney general, said today that the Daily Worker, official newspaper of the communist party in the United States, had filed a registration statement required of all agents of foreign principals.

Regge's announcement said that while denying that it acted as an agent for any foreign principal, the Daily Worker had admitted relationship with several foreign organizations, including Runa, a communist propaganda source in Moscow, Russia.

Ashurst Changes Mind About Tax

Says He Has to or People Of Arizona Will Replace Him in Senate

Washington — (P)—Reversing a stand taken six years ago, Senator Ashurst (D-Ariz.) announced yesterday his support of a move to exempt the 4 cents a pound excise tax on copper imports from the reciprocal trade agreements program.

In a senate speech, the Arizonian told colleagues that when he opposed a similar proposal in 1934 he did so "because there was agreement on all sides, including the administration," that the copper duty would be raised and he did not want to preclude President Roosevelt from taking such action.

"Possibly I had sweetbreads for brains when I believed that the duty would be raised," said Ashurst, "but I had reason to believe it and I believe now that if the Roosevelt administration goes on the rocks it will be because it has not been a high tariff administration."

Reminded by Senator Clark (D-Mo.) that his opposition had been mainly responsible for defeat of the earlier proposal to exempt excise taxes, including that on copper, from the trade agreements program, Ashurst told senators that if he did not take a stand now for high tariffs Arizona voters would replace him with someone who would.

"I would be disingenuous and lacking in frankness," he said, "should I pretend that I am putting this question upon a more exalted plain. Arizona will see to it that I am displaced by a high tariff man if I fail to do my duty here."

Withdrawal or reduction of the excise tax on copper, Ashurst warned, would mean that "many, if not most, of the copper mines and smelters in the west would fall into deliquescence."

Salaried Chairman Of Board Entitled To Committee Fees

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—A county board chairman who is voted a per annum salary by the board is also entitled to receive per diem compensation for committee service, the attorney general ruled today.

Attorney General John E. Martin advised District Attorney L. W. Bruemmer of Kewaunee county that the board chairman who receives $125 a year in salary, but who is a member ex-officio of all board committees, may also draw pay for the latter according to the statutory allowances.

Three Surrender on U. S. Income Tax Charge

Chicago—(P)—The last of 13 persons named by a federal grand jury in an omnibus indictment charging conspiracy to violate the income tax laws, surrendered yesterday and posted bond.

Described as the only woman ever indicted in an income tax case in this district, Miss Bernice Downey gave $10,000 bond and was released. The two others who surrendered yesterday were Edward H. Wait and Reginald E. Mackay.

Miss Downey, the government contends, was a collaborator in the operation of a currency exchange which functioned as a clearing house for gambling money and cashed more than $1,200,000 worth of checks for a gambling syndicate.

It was further charged that the exchange was operated by William R. Skidmore and William R. Johnson, pictured as key men in the syndicate. Both were indicted previously.

New York State Gets Pari-Mutuel Betting

Albany, N. Y. — (P) — New York became the seventeenth state opening horse race tracks. Pari-mutuel betting today with Governor Herbert H. Lehman's approval of a bill deeming the bookmakers in favor of mechanical wagering.

Lehman's sanction allows installation of betting machines, from which he estimates the state will benefit $5,000,000 by July 1, 1941, in time for the racing season opening April 15 at Jamaica.

Executive action on one of the most controversial issues before the recent legislature gave New York state a year's start on its neighbor, New Jersey, which has voted pari-mutuels for operation in 1941.

The other 15 states operating betting machines are Massachusetts, California, Florida, Maryland, Rhode Island, Illinois, New Hampshire, Delaware, Michigan, Kentucky, Washington, Arkansas, Ohio, West Virginia and Nebraska.

TAKES OVER JOB

It's still several weeks before the cry "Play ball" will be heard on Appleton diamonds but there's a lot of work to be done to put the Appleton club on the field for the first organized baseball game here in many years. So Eddie Danisak, above, who will manage the Appleton team in the newly organized Wisconsin State league, has arrived in town to start preparations. He has considerable correspondence to get out of the way immediately but in the meantime he's having open house at his room at the Conway hotel and wants to talk baseball with any youngster who is interested. Spring training begins here April 15 when battersmen will arrive and April 20 when others will put in their appearance.

Jackie Hayes of Pale Hose Goes to Chicago for Treatments

Bisbee, Ariz. — (P) — The Chicago White Sox fell on Clay Bryant's delivery for five runs in the first inning and beat the Chicago Cubs yesterday, 8 to 6, to even their exhibition feud at five games apiece. Bryant, whose sore arm kept him on the bench most of last season, yielded five hits in the first round. After that he pitched hitless ball for three innings before Julius Solters tripped in the fifth and scored on a wild pitch.

Jackie Hayes, veteran second baseman of the White Sox, who is suffering from an infected eye, en-trained for Chicago to consult a specialist. The eye began hurting last Thursday and has been growing steadily worse.

An important unit in the Sox infield, Hayes was just returning to top form after a long siege of knee trouble when the eye pain benched him again.

Chicago (A) 500 012 00X—8 11 1

THE WHITE BASS ARE GROWING MORE POPULAR

By Robert Page Lincoln

The white bass (Roccus chrysops) is well distributed throughout the Middle West, taking in Lake Erie, reaching up through Lake Michigan and Wisconsin and is also found more or less numerously in the state of Minnesota in waters having a connection with the Mississippi River. It works south through Iowa, Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, into Missouri and Arkansas and is well known in the states of Mississippi and Louisiana.

Only within the last ten years or so has the white bass come into unusual prominence as a game fish. It is now considered by some experts as being equal, if not superior, to the small mouthed bass as a fighting fish when taken on the fly rod of not too heavy weight.

It is easy to tell the white bass by its greenish back shading down into the silver of the sides and the belly. As a rule it is a croppie-shaped fish. There are six or seven black strips running horizontally with the body which at once identifies it if the peculiar color phase does not do so.

The white bass is the only true bass that is known to our inland fresh waters, since both the large mouthed and small mouthed black bass belong to the sunfish family and are not bass in any sense of the word. The white bass is said to be directly related to the striped bass of the ocean (Roccus saxatilis), in fact a common inland term for the white bass, especially in the South, is "stripers". White bass, in favored waters, will attain to three and four pounds weight and, sometimes, a foot to a foot and a half in length. The average weight would be about a pound.

While the white bass feeds largely on various larvae, crustacea and mayflies, it is also an inveterate minnow consumer, in fact it is a sight one will not soon forget to see three or four white bass, some times in a long line, crowd the minnows ahead of them and feeding upon them greedily. At times such as this when one is using either the bait rod or the fly rod, a sport is had that is really second to none.

We have found that the best lures for white bass when bait casting are a shimmy wiggler (white bucktail trimmed down), with a reduced, silvery pork rind, or a chum spoon with a small rind on the hook, the rind being split down the center. The twin spinner we have found to be unusually taking, and quite unrivaled when a school is feeding on minnows.

In fly rod fishing for white bass we have found that the Yellow Sally type of fly is the best, when attached to a shaft having a No. 2 gold spinner. This should be a hackle fly, chenille body, and no wiles. It should be tied to a No. 1-0 hook, either Model Perfect or hand-forged flat. With a fly of the sort we have taken great numbers of white bass. While this fish does not put up as sustained and vigorous a fight as the small mouthed bass, it, nevertheless, proves its ability at holding its own.

Should it ever be your fortune to hook a three or four pound white bass on a four ounce fly rod we can assure you that it will nip and tuck from the moment you set hook into the fish until it is landed—if you are fortunate.

Not only is the white bass an excellent game fish in every way but as a foodfish it has known and appreciated qualities. The flesh is white and flaky. We do not like this fish so well fried as we do broiled when it is at its best as a table fare.

In spite of the fact that the white bass is pursued more or less freely through the fishing season, it is not disappearing from the waters, then again emerges in schools. Sometimes it will strike with mad abandon; at other times you can cast your arm off among them and not take a fish. Unlike other fish the white bass seems able, in a strange way, to take care of itself, as proof of which its numbers are increasing instead of diminishing.

Ice Moving Out of Wolf; Fishermen Getting Ready

WITH the ice moving out of the Wolf river in the vicinity of Fremont and indications that the river will be free within a few days, fishermen are preparing for the annual pike season.

At midnight Sunday, April 14, the special Wolf and Winnebago waters season opens on what has always been one of the biggest spectacles of mass fishing in the middle west.

Numerous boat livery men at Fremont, Weyauwega, Winnebago, Shiocton and other points, are repairing equipment. It is estimated that in the Winnebago area alone some 600 small boats are available for hire, the usual fee being $1 a day during the wall eye run.

A retarded season seems a certainty now, at least insofar as the wall eyes themselves are concerned, for they spawn on a rising temperature, coming up into the Wolf from Lake Winnebago and depositing their spawn in the far flung marshes on either side of the stream.

Chief Biologist Edward Schenberger and his aides will be watching the Wolf and its spawning run with more than usual interest, because of the late season. Last year the opening was April 20, and that year also saw a retarded spring. As in other years, the 1939 Wolf river season aroused argument as to whether such dates can be set at such a time as to catch the wall eyes when they have completed spawning.

An Argument in Offing
The aim has been to declare the season open when the wall eyes have finished spawning and are coming down stream. This year, unless there is a decided change in the weather, the possibility is that wall eyes coming upstream, spawn laden, will be taken, although many Wolf river fishermen declare ascending wall eyes will not strike freely when obsessed with the spawning impulse.

White Sox Collect Horde Of Youthful Ball Players

BY TOM SILER

CHICAGO — (P) — No less than 100 boys from the bushes have a chance to begin the climb toward professional baseball success through the rehabilitation program of the Chicago White Sox.

Farm boss Billy Webb has collected this horde of young ball players from near and far for a shot at the pro game, most of them from the sandlots of the middle west.

Webb will assemble his young hopefuls at Jonesboro, Ark., between April 4 and 11 and begin drills. The best 70 players of the lot will be given jobs with White Sox-owned clubs or with clubs working with the American leaguers.

The White Sox own Lubbock of the West Texas-New Mexico league, Jonesboro of the Northeast Arkansas league and Waterloo, Iowa, of the Three-Eye league. Working agreements have been arranged with Wisconsin Rapids of the Wisconsin State league, St. Paul of the American association, and one is pending with St. Joseph of the Michigan State league.

Webb and White Sox scouts beat the bushes all over the country last season and more than 440 kids received a "look" by one or another of the club officials. The 100 being sent to Jonesboro are what remain of that group. Webb also received 400 applications for tryouts from kids during the winter but all of these were rejected because the club is opposed to signing any prospect without scouting him. All of these 100 players have signed contracts.

The boys will work out in Jonesboro twice a day under the direction of Webb and the three Sox farm managers.

Almost all of the prospects are ambitious sandlotters, but the few college boys sprinkled in the lot include Tommy Nisbet of Illinois, Lee Harris of Luther, Iowa, college; Oscar Broyer of Millikin, Decatur, Ill.; Andy Riggs of Iowa, Joe Coatar of Notre Dame, and Gene Myers of Ohio State.

Driscoll Calls Grid Practice for Tomorrow

Milwaukee — (P) — After numerous delays because of inclement weather, Coach Paddy Driscoll plans to start outdoor spring football practice at Marquette University tomorrow. He expects a squad of 60 or more.

Four weeks of drills in the hilltop gymnasium have given Driscoll a line on the potentialities of his squad. The gym workouts were devoted to calisthenics, fundamentals and signal drills.

Driscoll was pleased with the physical condition of his athletes. "We'll be ready for heavy drill almost from the start," he said.

Willie Hoppe Wins 15th Straight Match

Chicago — (P) — Willie Hoppe scored his 15th consecutive victory in the world's three cushion billiard championship last night when he turned back Otto Reisel, 50 to 47. Hoppe needs only one more victory to clinch the championship.

Only Jake Schaefer, who has nine wins and five defeats can tie Hoppe. A victory for Hoppe or a defeat for Schaefer today would give Hoppe the title.

In last night's only other game Walker Cochran, defending champion, defeated Jay Bozeman, 50 to 40.

Extend Deadline To File Entries For Pin Tourney

Success of City Meet Assured; Predict $700 In Prize Money

WITH 86 teams definitely entered and several more leagues yet to be heard from, the success of the first annual City Bowling association tournament is assured. More than $500 in the form of entry fees has been received and the amount is expected to reach $700 to $800 by the time an estimated 100 entries are filed. All of the money will be returned in cash awards.

Because most of the tournament officials were out of town over the weekend and some of the league secretaries have not turned in their entries, the deadline has been extended to 12 o'clock tonight in fairness to any teams unable to enter before last night's deadline.

Tournament officials, committees and league secretaries will be at 7 o'clock tonight at Hook's and Tony's barber shop, N. Appleton street, to check entries and make final arrangements for the event. Competition will get underway Saturday afternoon, April 6, at Elks alleys.

Pro Grid League Won't be Enlarged

Expected to Continue With 10 Teams: Loop Meets on April 12

New York — National Football league owners are not expected to depart from procedures, which have become traditional in recent years, when they convene for their twenty-first annual meeting at the Biltmore Hotel here April 12, 13 and 14.

Several cities are expected to make application for membership, with Los Angeles being the most persistent applicant. However, present indications are that the league will continue as a ten club circuit.

With the same teams operating which have for the past three years. The personnel of the league has not changed since Cleveland rejoined the circuit in 1937 to become the tenth team in the loop.

Some of the owners have indicated they favor longer schedules than the eleven game chart. The successful introduction of night games during the past two seasons is responsible, to some extent, for the desire to increase the number of league games. Night games, of course make it possible for teams to play more than eleven games, without extending the actual playing period for the season.

The owners, advocating longer seasons, however, are decided in the minority and the league will probably adopt a 53-game championship schedule again for the 1940 season. The majority of the owners seem to be sold on the idea that eleven games are enough for one season, particularly those who have won championships. The championship team, of course, is a principal in the playoff for the title and also engages in one post-season game in Los Angeles and the pre-season classic in Chicago, fourteen games in all.

Owner Coach George Halas of the Chicago Bears, chairman of the league committee, asserts that there have been no suggestions for radical changes in the code. Thus, the big news of the meeting figures to be generated by important player trades and the annual election.

Watch Us if Champs Fall, Say Bosox, Tigers, Indians
BY DILLON GRAHAM
AKELAND, Fla. — (1) — The Tigers, Indians and Red Sox remind me of a trio of young kids waiting for the tough guy of their gang to stumble and fall so that they may pounce upon him. You can readily guess that the Yankees are the Bully in this gang.

When you visit the training bases of these American league challengers from Detroit, Cleveland and Boston you find the players full of optimism—and hope that the worst will befall the Yankees.

If you pin them down they'll admit that the Yankees are the class of the league but they can't figure how the Yanks have held out so long. Baseball history shows that these marvelous clubs just don't hang together forever and they think the Yanks are overdue.

Greg Rice Is Awarded Track Writers' Trophy
New York — (1) — Gregory Rice, who established a new world record of 13.52 for three miles in beating Finland's Taisto Maki Sunday night yesterday was named the first winner of the Metropolitan Track Writers' association trophy as the outstanding athlete of the indoor track season.

Rice, who also lowered the two-mile mark to 8.562, received 47 votes. New York University's J. Herbert, holder of the indoor 600-yard mark of 1:10.8, was second with 27. Chuck Fenske, new mile king, third with 20 and Al Blosis, Georgetown sophomore who wrecked all shot-put records, fourth with 14.

Washington — More than one-fifth of the available seats for the Washington Redskins National Football League team's 1940 home games have already been sold. The Redskins have already sold 7,334 season tickets, compared with their total sale of 4,726 season tickets last year. The remarkable feature of the advance sale is that the fans will not know who the Redskins will play in their six home games, until after the league meets in New York, April 12.

Asheville, Fla. — Although it's a well known fact that the rookie who looks so good in the spring often look equally bad in mid-season, it appears young Johnny Rucker is going to be hard to oust from the center field spot with the New York Giants. Rucker is hitting .373 for the last seven exhibitions.

El Paso, Texas — Chicago's White Sox are giving two rookie infielders, third baseman Bob Kennedy and second baseman Don Kolloway a thorough test in their cross-country exhibition series with the Cubs. Both may be in the starting lineup if Eric McNair's arm fails to improve and Jackie Hayes' eye falls to respond to treatment.

West Palm Beach, Fla. — Thanks to the series in Cuba, Joe Orango has just about landed a job with the St. Louis Cardinals. A star shortstop with Sacramento last season, Orango was tried at third and second with the Cards and didn't come through after or at bat. Manager Ray Blades gave him a final trial at third in Havana, and Joe fielded sensationally.

Jacksonville, Fla. — Pitchers Mel Harder and Johnny Allen, and infielders Oscar Grimes and Lou Boudreau rejoined the Cleveland Indians as they arrived here for another game with the New York Giants. The four players were left behind when the Tribe broke camp at Fort Myers last week.

Dallas, Texas — Here's another warning to the New York Yankees American league rivals: Babe Dahlgren, the "light hitting" first baseman, now is leading the Yanks in home-run clouting with four.

Miami Beach, Fla. — Old Chuck Klein still is a dangerous batter, one with whom no pitcher can afford to take a chance, and he's proved it several times since he rejoined the Phillies. Chuck's most recent effort was a triple, with three aboard, which won the intra-camp championship for his team yesterday.

Pity the Poor Pirates Diamond Ace From 'Back When' Says They're All Sissies Now

BY ROBERT MYERS
Phoenix, Arizona — (1) — Whipping-cracking Frankie Frisch, new boss of the Pittsburgh Pirates, was sitting around swapping baseball yarns and keeping an idle eye on the hotel door to see that the mid-night curfew hour was observed by his erstwhile bad boy Buccos.

One thing led to another and presently Frisch was talking about training camps, the conditioning of ball players and ball players' ailments.

"Now the other day," Frisch declared, "I looked in our dressing room. They got enough stuff in there to stock a hospital. Cotton, bandages, ovens, heaters, operating tables, splints, knives, scissors they got everything."

"Why, I remember when all they had in a locker room was a bottle of rubbing alcohol, and they hid that because somebody'd be likely to drink it."

Prima Donnas Now
"Now days," he went on, "if a ball player gets a belly ache, he moans around like he's gonna die. Or if he twists a muscle in his little finger, he's got to see a specialist and go on crutches for a week."

"I remember one time I got a spike in my hand. Cut clear down in the bone. Put my hand up to my suit and it got covered with blood. Come in to the dugout and the Ol' Man, that was John McGraw, looked at it and laughed. Told me to have the trainer to

Stan Galle May Go to Brews' Madison Farm
Ocala, Fla. — (1) — Chester (Wimp) Wilburn, shortstop of the Milwaukee Brewers' 1936 little world series champions, has been promoted from a utility role to his former regular berth.

Manager Micker Heath dropped Stan Galle, heretofore the regular shortstopper in spring training exhibitions, to the vanguard squad yesterday and installed him at third base.

Heath said he thought Galle's best bet is to try the hotcorner and indicated the Milwaukee youngster probably would be sent to the Madison club of the Three-Eye league.

Mickey Mc Quire, originally ticketed as Madison's third sacker, has been shifted to shortstop as a potential utility man.

No game was scheduled yesterday, but both the regulars and yanigans were due for action today. The varsity went to Leesburg to play the St. Paul Saints while the rookies remained here to meet Ocala's Florida State league entry.

Patrick Picks Rangers To Take Stanley Cup
New York — (1) — Lester Patrick, who called his shot perfectly when he predicted his New York Rangers would beat the Boston Bruins in six games to take their first series in the National Hockey league playoff, has issued another prediction for the Stanley cup final against the Toronto Maple Leafs which begins tonight: "The Rangers in six games."

Naturally, the Ranger manager doesn't expect to find boss Conny Smythe of the Maple Leafs agreeing with him, but the prediction appears to be pretty sound. Smythe himself said a couple of months ago that the Rangers were the best team in the league and would win in a walk.

Census Takers to Begin Population Count Wednesday

17 Enumerators Will Ask Questions in Appleton, Grand Chute

The 1940 population census was to start this morning in the nation with 120,000 enumerators scheduled to visit 32 million families to ask a series of questions designed to give the facts for data on problems which have become particularly pressing in the last decade.

In Appleton 17 census takers will start Wednesday morning on their first rounds of homes in the city. Appleton and Outagamie county are under the jurisdiction of the Green Bay census bureau office headed by Harold Kuyper, DePue.

This year's census is the greatest fact-finding undertaking in the nation's history and is the 15th anniversary of census taking in America. New statistical knowledge will be developed on education, mass migration, employment, occupation and wage and salary income and by means of modern computing devices, preliminary summaries of the basic facts will be made available at an early date.

The question on income, one that has caused much disturbance nationally, does not ask for accurate information on income as is commonly understood. The question merely asks how much the person made in wages or salary last year, up to $5,000. If he made more, he merely answers "over $5,000."

Census-Takers Launch Drive

he said, in which the enumerator will make notation enabling tabulators to trace the "anonymous" name information to the person who supplies it.

Again counselling people to refuse answers to the income questions on the ground they violate privacy, Tobey announced he had introduced a bill to rescind the 60-day jail penalty which may be imposed for failure to supply census information. Previously he tried to have the income questions stricken from the schedules, but senate inaction frustrated the attempt.

Regardless of Tobey's efforts, the census army was on the march. No home was too fine nor none too mean for the enumerators. Uncle Sam promised the enumerators 4 cents an hour and a little more in special cases for the legislative and vital statistics on every one of his estimated 132,000,000 nephews and nieces.

Population Count
Overshadowing all popular quiz games of the moment, the census had, legally, the one central purpose of finding out exactly how many Americans there were, so that the states could be allotted their fair share of the seats in the house of representatives. The authors of the constitution planned it that way, and the nose-counting has been done every 10 years.

But, at the census bureau where they have even invented special tabulating machines to tabulate the reports, officials looked for other information which may influence the nation's legislative and social outlook for years to come.

The enumerators were ordered not only to count the population, but to find out how many were unemployed, how many were earning just a little, how many people live in tourist camps, how many have migrated in flight from dust or hard times in the last five years, how many own their own homes, what crops they raise, what sanitary and electrical facilities they have, and a multitude of other questions.

unions, to ask the board for an election. Board regulations adopted last summer asked permit employers to make such a request.

Representative Welch (R-Calif.) won approval, 11 to 4, for his proposal that Mrs. Norton ask Speaker Bankhead for permission to call up the committee's amendments under special house procedure to limit debate to two hours and preclude consideration of any other amendments.

As the committee session ended, Representative Ramspeck (D-Ga.), ranking Democratic member, described the Welch action as "the most astute thing the committee ever did." He raised the question as to whether house rules would permit that procedure.

Mrs. Norton explained that Welch intended to protect amendments approved by the committee by excluding consideration of other possible changes "that might destroy" the act.

Would Limit Power
One amendment yet to be voted upon by the group would provide that after the labor board has certified a union as exclusive bargaining agent with an employer, the board could make no changes in that arrangement for at least one year.

tion's principal remaining issues, raised considerable interest, much attention also was directed in Capitol circles today to an informal luncheon arranged by Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, with William C. Bullitt, ambassador to France, as guest of honor.

Before the house agriculture committee Daniel W. Bell, undersecretary of the treasury, opposed a proposal for a 3 per cent interest rate for federal farm loans. He suggested instead a flexible rate depending on the federal cost of borrowing money.

Trade Agreements
The senate debated trade agreements legislation. Senator McCarran (D-Nev.) proposed to permit congress to impose export taxes on any import commodity irrespective of the terms of pacts reached with other nations.

McCarran sought also to prevent the state department from reducing existing export taxes on any import or from pledging in any agreement that congress would not enact new duties. He thus broadened an amendment which would have "frozen" taxes on oil, coal, lumber and copper.

"My object," McCarran told the senate, "is to see that congress does not lose complete control over matters that in my judgment he specifically within the power of congress—revenue and taxation."

Senator Pittman (D-Nev.), supporting McCarran's proposal, charged that it was the intent of the proponents of the trade agreements extension legislation "to surrender all tariff powers to the secretary of state."

14-Months Old Herbie Pulls "Apwul Pool" Joke on His Mother

Milwaukee —(AP)—Herbert Smith, Jr., 14 months old, toddled into the bathroom at his home yesterday and fumbled with the key until he had locked himself in.

His mother pleaded in vain for Herbie to unlock the door, and then she called the fire department. The firemen arrived and divided into two groups, some knocking at the door, the other setting up a ladder to the bathroom window.

As all this activity got under way, Herbie managed to open the door. Surrounded by bewildered firemen, he beamed and said: "Apwul pool."

Weatherman Pulls April Fool Joke; More Rain Is Due

Prediction for Clear Skies Today Was Either Gag or Mistake

The weatherman shouldn't have been taken seriously yesterday, seeing it was April 1, but his prediction was accepted and today inhabitants of Appleton and vicinity saw dark clouds and drizzles of rain instead of the clear skies they expected.

The Milwaukee bureau today forecast "occasional rain or local thunderstorms tonight and Wednesday, with rising temperatures." At noon today the thermometer atop the Post-Crescent building registered 37 degrees. For the 24-hour period ended at 9 o'clock this morning, the highest mark in the city was 47 and the lowest 32, according to Wisconsin Michigan Power company charts.

Rain splashed over most of the northern states in the mid-west and Rocky mountain areas today, varying from a few drops to more than one inch, the Associated Press reported.

Chicago, with 1.15 inches, found that the early-morning thunder-showers flooded several south-side underpasses, temporarily halting street cars on several lines.

The rain fell in Montana, Wyoming, Idaho, Utah, North Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin, northern Illinois and Indiana and central Ohio.

Forecasters C. A. Donnel, Chicago, said showers would continue tonight and tomorrow in most mid-western states and there may be snow in the Dakotas, upper Michigan and western Nebraska.

Temperatures at 6:30 a. m., varied from freezing in the upper lake section to 60 at Evansville, Ind., and above 70 in southern Texas. The coldest place in the nation last night was Marquette, Mich., with 17 above. Donnel predicted 70-degree weather in the Chicago area tomorrow.

Improvements for Water Plant Will Be Before Council

The Appleton water commission yesterday discussed proposed improvements at the purification plant and then agreed to present the plans to the city council Wednesday night.

Among the improvements is the addition of additional mixing equipment in the settling basin at the plant to insure a better mixture of chemicals used in purifying the water.

The commission voted to advertise for 90,000 gallons of fuel oil for the Diesel engines at the plant and to re-advertise for bids on service trenching for 1940.

The audit of E. A. Dettman was submitted and the commission voted to consider the audit at a future meeting. The report of the secretary for 1939 and the financial and plant reports for February were read and placed on file.

Accuses Pelley, Army Officers

Communist to be so cited within a week.

Dickstein said Pelley had told investigators that the time would come when aliens would be shot down all over the country.

It Detroit, he said, the publisher had worked with a Captain Rubley, "who then was using armories and horses to train Silver Rangers for the Silver Shirts."

"In Cleveland," Dickstein continued, "his organizers met with army officers. This same procedure worked in most of the larger cities of the country. In Oklahoma, a ranger division was established, whose members were uniformed and armed. In California, a Silver Shirts rifle club was headed by William J. Kemp."

Dickstein said Pelley had estimated the Silver Shirts numbered 3,000,000 at one time, but that they were estimated by others to number only 75,000.

"He (Pelley) was well acquainted with the background of the organization of the Black Legion," Dickstein said, "having known Mr. E. J. Connelley in Lima, Ohio, and Dr. Shippard, the chief organizer. His influence in hundreds of smaller fascist American organizations is well known, among these the crusaders for America, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Reverend Winrod's group of Kansas, the Christian Mobilizers of New York, and the Christian front groups throughout the country."

He said that William Bishop, whom he described as having been arrested and indicted for treason recently, had worked with Pelley.

Chairman Dies (D-Texas) announced that the committee had summoned a number of leaders of the Christian front and the Christian mobilizers to appear promptly. They will be questioned within a few days, he said. Some members of the Christian front were arrested in New York recently on federal charges.

Legion Carnival Starts Tomorrow Night at Armory

Will Run Four Evenings, Saturday Afternoon; Fleming Chairman

The Oney Johnston post of the American Legion made final arrangements for its 4-day carnival opening tomorrow night at a business meeting last evening in the clubhouse.

Ed Fleming is general chairman for the carnival, which will be held Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings and Saturday afternoon and evening at Armory D. Doors will open at 7 o'clock in the evening and a special program for children is scheduled for Saturday afternoon.

A nightly floor show, games, gifts, refreshments and other entertainment will be offered for those who attend the annual legion event.

Assisting Fleming from the post are Commander Frank Wilson, Herb Farrand, C. O. Baetz, Owen Kuether, Ben Shimek, Earl Engel, Gilbert Trentlage, William De Laine, Clifford Rader, Floyd Kessler, Max Koletke, Louis Michlin, Ed Lutz, Raymond Kleist, Stanley Stadi, Fred Gehrke, Ray Greason, and William J. Ferron.

Auxiliary members assisting are Mrs. A. A. Arens, Mrs. Ed Lutz, Mrs. Fred Gehrke, Mrs. Les Holzer, and Mrs. C. O. Baetz.

Delegates to the Ninth district conference at Algoma Sunday, April 29, were named at last night's meeting. They are Commander Wilson, Staidl, Baetz, John Hantschel, Lutz, Engel, and Kleist. Alternates are Leonard Ney, Harvey Pribe, Fred Volkman, John Bauer, Walter Bogdan, Les Holzer, and Gehrke.

Dale Andrews of Kaukauna, present district vice commander, will be a candidate for the position of district commander at the conference election.

vote in either party. The Progressives polled more than 353,000 votes for governor in 1938.

There are miscellaneous candidates for district delegates, including a lone candidate running in support of Senator Robert Taft (R-Ohio), who did not file in Wisconsin.

Polling hours in the cities are 6 a. m. to 8 p. m., with an earlier closing in rural areas. The complexity of the necessary tabulation gave indications the results might be slow in forthcoming.

Also attracting national interest is Milwaukee's municipal election in which Socialist Daniel W. Hoan, mayor for 24 years, is opposed by 32-year-old Carl Zeidler, former assistant city attorney and member of no party. Balloting is on a non-partisan basis.

Elsewhere in the nation the political news included New York's primary today for the selection of convention delegates, the entry of the name of Senator Taft (R-Ohio) in New Jersey where Dewey already has filed a municipal election in Kansas City which may produce political signposts, and a hint from James Cromwell, minister to Canada, that he may run for the Democratic senatorial nomination in New Jersey.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

Roman woman holding tablet and stylus.

ROMAN CENSUS TAKER

In times of ancient Rome a few girls went to school, but not many compared to the boys. The pupils were taught to write on wax-covered tablets, using a stylus to scratch the marks on the wax. In later life they more often wrote on the form of paper known as "papyrus."

When the boys grew to manhood, their knowledge of writing helped them in many ways, not only for letter-writing but also to perform duties in public office. Some became "censors," and assistants to censors. In this work there was much writing to be done. From time to time, the censors went to work on a "census."

The word "census" came from the Latin language, and means "estimate."

A Roman censor did not go from house to house to learn facts. He waited in a public place, and an order was sent out for people to come to him. We may picture him seated in a large chair, with rolls of papyrus before him for use in taking down notes. When people came to him, he asked them questions and their answers were written down.

We might suppose that many persons would not appear before the censor, and it is quite likely that some were missed. The Romans, however, had a strong system of law. When people were ordered to go to a certain place most of them were quick about it.

Going back to the year which was 230 B. C., we find a total of 270,000 Roman citizens. That number did not include women and children. Counting all members of the family there probably were about 1,250,000 persons in the families of Roman citizens at that time.

Population usually climbs as time goes on, but the next Roman census showed a drop in number of citizens. The new census, 16 years later, showed only 214,000 of them.

The reason is found in Roman history. Between the years named the Romans had fought long and hard against the armies of Carthage. They had won the war, but had lost a vast number of men.

Not all people in Italy were citizens. Roman citizens were those of thousands were slaves, and a great number of others were farmers who had not been made citizens.

In the time of Julius Caesar many Gauls in northern Italy and in Gaul (modern France) became Roman citizens. This led quite a number of them to name their sons "Julius" as a mark of friendship toward Caesar.

Warm Homes Provide Winter Havens for Number of Insects

BY CLARA HUSSONG

Spring housecleaning may reveal to careful housekeepers a number of insects who have found lodging in our homes through the winter months. Most of them are harmless although they may be annoying to those who have a "bug" of any kind.

While taking out a stock of clothes to air from a little-used closet, a fly may come buzzing out, or while moving paper cartons or straightening a wood pile in the basement a cricket may scurry across the floor. "How did that thing come in?" the housewife may ask and she may plan to see that the screens get on the windows immediately.

The truth is that these insects and many other besides have been in the house all winter but have remained more or less inactive. Out in the open a good many adult insects are killed off by the cold but their progeny, in the form of eggs, caterpillars or pupae, weathered the storms and cold and will emerge as adults as soon as it gets warm.

Moths Are Worst
Immature forms of insect life are also brought in unknowingly and have spent the winter months in flower pots, terrariums (gardens under glass), winter bouquets, among fire-wood and in other unsuspected places. Because the temperature of the house is much higher than that outdoors they hatch out sooner and we observe these insects in the house several weeks before they appear out in the open.

The most dreaded of all insects to have in the house is the clothes moth whose larvae, or caterpillars, feed on animal fibers such as wool and fur. Several years ago, upon request, I gave all the remedies I could find for this pest. Since then I've heard of another one which I'm assured is a sure cure.

During a very cold spell, zero or below (sorry I didn't think to mention this last January) carry out all your wool rugs, wool-upholstered furniture, woolen and fur clothing to an open porch, garage or directly outside. If left outside several hours, the larvae are supposed to be killed off by the extreme cold. This may be a good precaution even if you don't suspect the presence of the insects.

The larvae is a tiny maggot-like insect which spends its time when not feeding in a sort of sleeve made of the fibers on which it feeds. Adult clothes moths, the winged form, have a wing-spread of about half an inch and are light tan in color.

Walking Sticks Appear
It's no use killing off the winged clothes moths, they aren't the ones who do the damage it's their caterpillars you have to kill. I've often heard people say, "True, but if the adult moth is a female who has mated with a male, or has the opportunity to mate, she will lay eggs which in turn will hatch into the destructive larvae."

Those of us who collect nature specimens are probably the ones who bring in the most insect, both knowingly and unknowingly. The friend, whose luna moth-raising activities I've mentioned several times, called me the other day to tell me, that a brood of walking sticks hatched out in the glass aquarium where she raises her moths. The eggs of the walking sticks must have been deposited on the leaves with which she fed her moths or on the twigs and sticks put in the case for perching purposes.

Quite a number of cocoon collectors have told me that their moths have emerged. These had all been kept in warm rooms which is why they emerged about two months sooner than those who remain outdoors. Neither the luna nor the cecropia moths feed after they emerge from the cocoons but the various sphynx, tomato or hawk moths do. If you've ever seen them hovering over petunias, four-o'clocks and other long-tubed flowers, you must have seen their long sucking tubes with which they extract nectar from flowers.

Snail and Bat
To guard against too early hatching of my cocoons, I've discovered a new place to keep them through the winter. For the past few years I've made window scenes between the storms and regular windows in the living room. Layers of moss make up the ground floor of the scene and I've used several kinds of moss to make it more colorful.

Evergreen twigs, bright berries, trailing vines and highly-colored fungus growths attached to bits of wood or stone add still more color and contour to the scene. I placed my cocoons, gall growths and other dormant insect forms in suitable spots along this window landscape. It is cool enough to keep the insects from emerging too early, the insects won't be able to escape and they are in full view so I can watch their progress.

Besides the insects I have two other "wild animals" to watch this winter. One is a snail which I found one day in my terrarium. It had evidently been brought in with the leaf mold and ground and it spends its time traveling through the miniature jungle of moss, ferns and tiny plants, or in traveling up and down the sides of the glass jar. My other wild animal is a bat, sleeping in a box on our front porch.

Outagamie County Shows Increase In Relief Cases

General Picture in Valley Is Spotty at Beginning of March

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — The general relief picture in the Fox river valley neighborhood at the beginning of March was spotty, the state public welfare department reported today, with increases in some counties and encouraging reductions in the burden in others in that section.

Unusual were heavy increases in Calumet and Kewaunee counties, normally sections with the lowest relief caseload in the state.

The state as a whole showed an increase of less than 1 per cent in the case load. Total number of cases receiving general relief in Wisconsin during February was 52,896. Total disbursements during the month showed a decline from the previous month, $1,251,922 against $1,330,852, the welfare department announced.

Case loads and the proportion of change in the counties of the north-eastern Wisconsin section are shown in the table following:

County	Cases	Change
Brown	1,359	+ 2.9
Calumet	131	+10.1
Outagamie	706	+ 6.2
Shawano	345	- 7.5
Waupaca	423	- 3.4
Manitowoc	717	- 0.8
Winnebago	1,162	- 1.8
